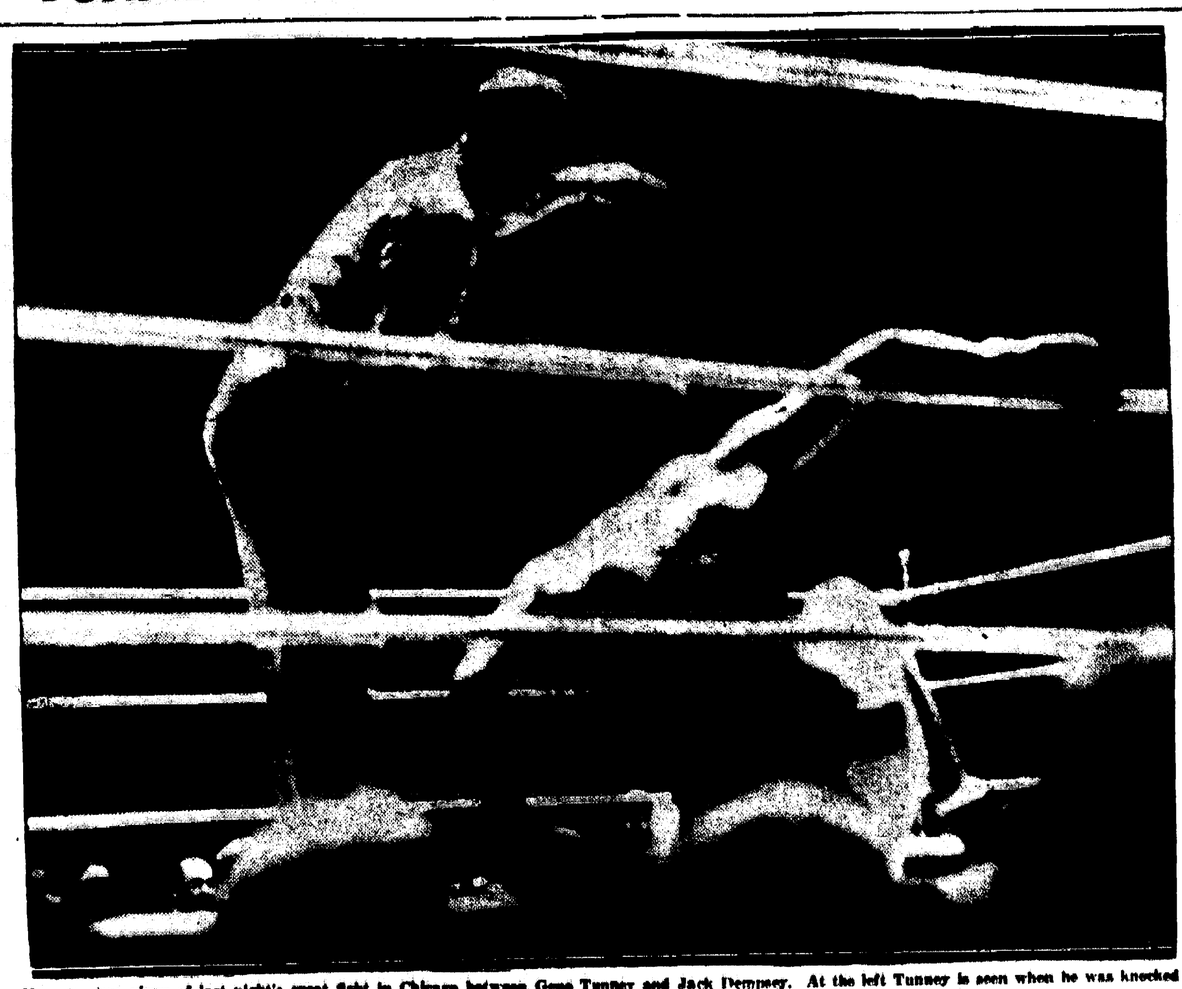
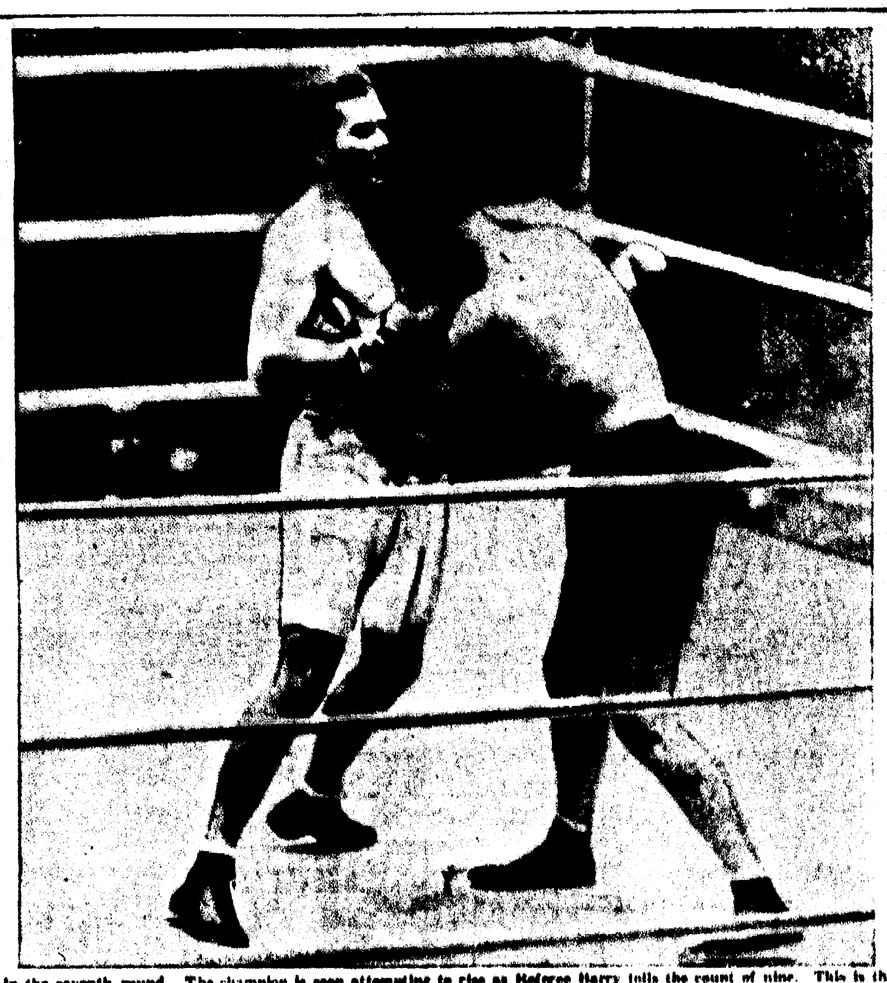
TUNNEY RETAINS TITLE ... IN FIERCEST BATTLE ... OF HIS CAREER





Here are two views of last night's great fight in Chicago between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey. At the left Tunney is seen when he was knocked down in the seventh round. The champion is seen attempting to rise as Referee Harry tells the count of nine. This is the round in which controversy raged today as to whether or not Gene got a "long" count. At the right the two fighters are shown at the opening of the second round, when Dempsey rushed the champion and they exchanged short jabs to the body in the center of the ring. This photo was sent by wire from Chicago and furnished The Marion Star by Central Press.

6 MEET DEATH WHEN GERMAN PLANE CRASHES

Von Maltzan, Ambassador to U. S., on Furlough, One of Victims

Berlin, Sept. 23—Baron Ago Von Maltzan, German ambassador to the United States, who was home on furlough, and five other persons were killed today when the Lufthansa plane in which they were riding crashed near Schleiz, Thuringia.

The crash occurred at about 11 o'clock this morning.

The ambassador was enroute from Munich to Berlin, and was flying in one of the Lufthansa concern's regular passenger planes.

In addition to the German ambassador, those killed were; Herr Rolle, director of the German federal railroads; Herr Venarnim, traffic superintendent of the Lufthansa concern; Osmers, a student flyer; Pilot Carlet and his mechanician, Feiler.

Sabotage Suspected

The cause of the crash, the most disastrous in the history of German commercial aviation, was not immediately determined, but aviation officials said they suspected sabotage might have been responsible.

The gasoline tanks of the plane exploded when the plane struck the ground.

Eye-witnesses, living in the neighborhood of Schleiz, said the plane approached that town from the north, flying at a height of about 1,300 feet. They said the left wing apparently became loosened from the fuselage, and that when the pilot attempted to land, the wing broke off commpletely.

Baron Von Maltzan was on his way to visit his wife and two children, who were stopping at the home of the ambassador's father at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, a health resort.

Baron Von Maltzan was born 50 years ago. He was appointed ambassador at Washington on Mch. 12, 1925. It was his first major diplomatic mission, although he had spent practically all of his life in the foreign service.

TRAINERS OF BOTH FIGHTERS WELL PAID

Chicago, Sept. 23—Jerry Luvadis, who trained Jack Dempsey for his unsuccessful attempt to regain his title from Gene Tunney, will get $25,000, it was understood here today.

Lou Fink, Tunney's trainer, was slated to receive a $20,000 reward.

SEEK NEW TRIAL FOR INDIANAPOLIS MAYOR

Battle to Halt Sentence and Fine Starts as Political Thrones Shake

Indianapolis, Sept. 23—The political thrones of Indiana were shaking today as the fact that a politician of consequence had been sent to jail by a Marion County jury was digested.

Conviction of Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis on a charge of violation of the corrupt practices was viewed as only the beginning of Hoosierdom's long-delayed effort to purge itself of political corruption.

Seek New Trial

Duvall's attorneys today were battling to obtain a new trial to prevent the consummation of his sentence of 30 days in the Marion County jail and a fine of $1,000, with a proviso that the mayor shall not hold public office for four years from Nov. 2, 1925, the date of his violation of the corrupt practices act.

Special Judge C. C. Shirley today set for October 8 further consideration of the case of Duvall.

LEVINE STARTS FLIGHT; SEEKS WORLD RECORD

Takes Off Today in Long-Delayed Attempt at 4,300-Mile Trip to India

Cranwell Aerodrome, Sleaford, Eng., Sept. 23—Charles A. Levine began his long-delayed attempt to break the world's record for sustained flight this morning when he hopped off in the transatlantic monoplane, "Miss Columbia," for Karachi, India.

He was accompanied by Captain Walter R. Hinchcliffe.

The start was made shortly after 8 o'clock.

Levine originally intended to fly back to the United States in the same plane which carried him and Clarence D. Chamberlin to Germany from New York. Because of stormy weather over the Atlantic, he decided on Sept. 15 to turn the nose of his plane eastward, and fly toward the Orient as long as his gasoline held out.

Long Wait

The Miss Columbia had been held in readiness for a long-distance flight for many weeks. Levine and Captain Hinchcliffe had been almost constantly at the aerodrome awaiting favorable weather for their take-off.

The distance from Sleaford to Karachi is approxmately 4,300 miles.

The Miss Columbia made a perfect take-off under favorable weather conditions. The plane carried 480 gallons of gasoline, which the fliers estimated would be sufficient to carry them to their goal.

Proposed Route

When Levine announced his intention of flying to India, he said he probably would follow the trail blazed by William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee in their attempted flight around the world. Schlee and Brock followed a straight line across the European continent, which carried them across Germany, Turkey and Persia to Karachi.

The Miss Columbia carries enough gasoline for 50 hours' flying. The plan carries no radio.

District Attorney Plans Action To Stop Showing of Fight Films

New York, Sept. 23—If motion pictures of the Tunney-Dempsey championship bout are shown in New York theaters, the government will immediately take action, under the law prohibiting interstate transportation of fight films, and subpoena the champion and challenger as well as the distributors of the movies and managers of the show-houses exhibiting them, Assistant United States District Attorney George Nintzer declared today.

His statement was made in response to the announcement that pictures of the fight would be shown in New York within two days after the bouts.

TWO ESCAPED OHIO PENITENTIARY CONVICTS

The four men who escaped with the Hall brothers are still at large.

DECREASE EXPECTED IN PARALYSIS CASES

Advent of Colder Weather to Check Disease, Authorities Predict

Washington, Sept. 23—While the total of new cases of infantile paralysis showed a material increase for the week ending Sept. 17 over the preceding week officials of the United States public health service predicted today that the vent of colder weather would bring a sharp reduction in the number of cases.

Massachusetts, with 106 cases, again held the lead in number of new cases. Other states where the disease is prevalent include New York, 92; Ohio, 89; California, 66; Pennsylvania, 48, New Jersey, 39; Illinois, 36.

Blakeley, Ga., Sept. 23—Harris Hayes and his wife, held in solitary confinement on charges of murder growing out of the death of Mrs. Gladys Hayes, of Detroit, their daughter-in-law found additional charges today as a result of a chemist's examination of the viscera of their two sons, James and Aaron, who died in August.

The report of the chemist, Dr. Edgar L. Brunhart, showed the finding of "sufficient poison to kill" in the stomachs of the two young men.

Hayes and his wife now are held on a coroner's warrant charging murder. The evidence will be presented to the grand jury which meets Oct. 3.

No motive for the alleged murders is known excepting possible collection of the amounts of small insurance policies.

Dempsey Will Quit Ring, Wife Predicts; Jack Not So Sure

"Plans Up in Air," Former Champion States; Offers No Alibi But Believes He Knocked Tunney Out in Seventh

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

Chicago, Sept. 23—Jack Dempsey may hang up the gloves.

Broken-hearted and beaten, but not conquered, the most colorful character of the prize ring today sought solace for his defeat by Gene Tunney in the companionship of his loyal and beautiful wife, Estelle Taylor, the screen star, and together they discussed his future.

"I said before the fight if Jack lost he would quit the ring, and I think he will," said Mrs. Dempsey this morning, after a long talk with her husband.

May Not Agree

Jack himself wasn't so sure.

"I'm going back to California immediately but beyond that my plans are up in the air," said the ex-champion, who

By GEORGE MARRY

Chicago, Sept. 23—Gene Tunney did more last night than merely to make a successful defense of his title, for he gained the distinction of being the only man that ever went down before the onslaught of Jack Dempsey and then arose to go on to victory.

Without detracting from the glory of Tunney's victory, his brainy battle and his gameness, it still must be said that he remains today as king in the fistic realms because of two things: (first) a long, long count and (second) the inexplicable failure of Dempsey to rip and tear into him with finishing punches when, groggy and bewildered, he arose in a daze from the seventh round knockdown.

Loud Protests

The claim of the Dempsey faction rattles to the high heavens today—and

COULD HAVE GOTTEN UP AT COUNT OF ONE HAD HE DESIRED, GENE SAYS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—Champion Gene Tunney declared today that he could have gotten up at the count of one, had he cared to, when Jack Dempsey floored him in the seventh round of their thrilling battle last night at Soldiers' Field.

"I heard the referee count one and could have gotten up then had I thought it advisable," said Tunney, who hasn't a scratch to show his part in the fight. "I conserved, however, to get the most of my recovery period. I watched Dempsey and listened to the referee. I was fully aware of what was transpiring."

Dempsey, meanwhile, remained in seclusion at the hotel apartments of his wife, Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. Though his personal physician Dempsey announced he would not leave the hotel today and had no further statements to make.

Jay F. Flynn, Dempsey's manager, said he was going before the boxing athletic commission and ask the commission to reverse the ruling of the referee and judges.

Nearly 1,000 Fans Hear Blow-by-Blow Fight Report Through Star's Megaphone

By GILMORE HIETT
Who Megaphoned the Fight

GAMENESS — desirable in both fighter and fan — was displayed last night.

Huge quantities of the mentioned quality were offered for both home and foreign consumption in at least two places, Soldiers' Field and Marion, Ohio.

Digestion of consumed portions will continue throughout the coming century.

It requires true gameness for a fighter to fight, and keep on fighting after he has been down and almost out. Last night two men, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, at separate times, did that very thing.

Especially gratifying is the knowledge that they came back for more when a vast fortune was waiting for each regardless of personal attitude.

Undaunted by Cold

It doesn't take much spirit for a fan to brave low temperatures and sit in a great stadium and watch a heavyweight championship bout. Values in money terms are incidental if's worth anything just to be there.

No particular commendation is due the fan that sits before the fireplace in an easy chair and hears reports. His is the path of least resistance.

The fan, the real fan, the one that is an integral part of every sport's success, is that one that will stand on a curbing for two hours and shiver. He hears nothing. He just waits and waits until finally, he gets the dope on the big show.

There were approximately 1,000 of the real fans gathered in front of The Star office last night and how game they were. One-fourth of the total figure was on hand at 8 o'clock. They swung their arms, circled their heels and were happy until the big bout started about two hours later.

Women in Crowd

From the end of the megaphone at which your hoarse and humble servant served, it was, at least, a most heart gladdening spectacle. A year ago on the occasion of the first Dempsey-Tunney match, the gathering was possibly larger but not nearly so impressive as that last night. The 1,000 men and, also the dozens of dear ladies, that turned out were the real, true fans, game to the core. And, bless their hearts how they could yell — and did.

Well, 'nuff 's nuff; I'll see you through the megaphone someday. So long.

"BABY SMITH" CASE DECIDED

Parents Accept Verdict of Judge and Take Child Home

Cleveland, Sept. 23—Little "Georgia" Smith aged one month and one day, was home today, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith were trying to forget a "George" Smith, who, the scales of justice say, never existed.

Bringing to an end one of the most complicated cases of its kind ever recorded, Common Pleas Judge Carl V. Weygandt late yesterday dismissed the habas corpus action filed by Sam Smith, local barber, asking that a local hospital be compelled to produce one "Baby George Smith," who, the petition said, was lost in a shuffle of babies at the institution.

Reviews Evidence

There was no evidence, Judge Weygandt declared, in his decision, to substantiate the claim of Mrs. Smith that a baby born to her in a local maternity hospital Aug. 22 was exchanged for another. On the contrary, he said, all the evidence supported the contention of the hospital that a mistake was made at the time of birth; that a nurse erroneously reported Mrs. Smith's baby as a boy when in reality it was a girl.

There was little question in his own mind the judge said, but that Mrs. Smith had the right baby. The testimony of doctors and scientists who examined the child and commented on its marked resemblance to Mr. and Mrs. Smith was most convincing, he said.

Chief Cause of Trouble

"There never would have been any doubt," he stated, "if incorrect information had not been given out in the first place. Then when certain discrepancies and changes were discovered in the hospital's records, it was enough to raise a doubt in any mother's mind.

"However, the great probability is that the child is Mrs. Smith's. There is absolutely no evidence that it is not."

BUILDER PREDICTS GOOD YEAR IN 1928

W. T. Jones Takes Out Permit for 23 Homes; Value Placed at $39,000

That Marion next year will experience one of the best years in its history, was the prediction of W. T. Jones, real estate man, yesterday when he called at the office of the city clerk to take out building permits for 23 dwellings, practically all to be built in southwest Marion.

Mr. Jones, who has practically built southwest Marion and who is perhaps more vitally interested in the situation than most anyone in the city, said yesterday that he could not see any reason why Marion should not enjoy one of the best years in its history next year.

The situation in industrial plants, he said, will be adjusted by that time. There are prospects for added business he said.

The total estimated value of the dwellings for which permits were taken out by Mr. Jones yesterday was $39,700. Seven of the dwellings are on Congress-st, six on Oak Grove-av, one on Barks-av, one on Thler-av, two on Merkel-av, one on N. Oak-st, three Sheridan-rd and two on Woodlawn. Ten of the dwellings will cost $1,800 each, 11 will cost $1,900 each, one will cost $2,100 and one $2,000.

A permit also was issued to Boyd McClasky, of Alliance, who will build a garage at 254 Chicago-av at a cost of $125.

An Outline of Fashion

BEING A REVIEW—IN STORY AND PICTURE—OF WOMEN'S STYLES DURING THE LAST HUNDRED YEARS

This is the second of the series of six articles on the "Outline of Fashion." The first article covered the "leg-o-mutton" era from 1827 to 1837. The one below describes the "Crinoline age," 1851-1858.

BY MME. LISBETH
Fashion Expert for Central Press and The Star

THE year 1837, beginning the famous Victorian era, was a notable one in women's fashions. It endorsed many eccentricities and absurdities, the first of which was the crinoline.

The skirt of this period was very fully gathered at the waistline. It was usually without trimming, or showed a simple application of trimming above the hem. It touched the ground and was worn over several starched cambric petticoats or an underskirt of stiff crinoline. The waistline, a little lower than normal, was pulled in and sternly whaleboned.

Shoes of Period

Black velvet shoes and gray Morocco shoes with matching satin gaiters were worn in the street; black slippers over white stockings were worn in the house. Later came the congress shoes. These were of Morocco, prunella cloth, silk or satin, with elastic sides, and drawn in by means of straps in front and back.

The bonnet was a poke, the brim standing high off the face in front and trimmed with flowers, ribbons and plumes. It was tied tightly under the chin with ribbons. Wraps were shawls or shawl-mantles; caps of net, lace and ribbons were worn in the house.

Wire Hoops Appear

The wire hoop, first introduced in 1854, became universal in 1858. The basque persisted, but shawls gave way to coats and mantles fitted close to the figure. The shoulder line was low placed, and the wide, fabric sleeves and lace or linen undersleeves were more voluminious than those of seven years before, 1851. Evening dresses were low necked and had close-fitting bodices deeply pointed in front.

The poke or coal-scuttle bonnet was now replaced by the valance bonnet, a close, brimless affair tied under the chin and with a fall of lace at the back.

An Era of Ornaments

A super-abundance of ornaments is seen on all dresses of this period. No woman who made any pretense of being fashionably dressed ever wore machine-made lace. Real lace was retailed in the leading shops for as much as $1,000 a yard, lace parasol covers were sold for $1,500, and according to the records of a leading New York shop, lace shawls brought as high as $15,000.

With the Civil war came the gradual passing of the crinoline, and the "age of innocence" came on.

Tomorrow—The "Age of Innocence"

HERE'S MORE ABOUT TUNNEY VICTORY

seconds merged finally into a minute and still Dempsey, who might have finished Tunney with a cyclonic rush, kept stalking around, waiting for one good shot. While he waited, Tunney continued his bicycle riding and, eventually, his brain cleared and his legs steadied.

Opportunity Gone

When Dempsey finally rushed in, perhaps a minute, perhaps longer, after Tunney had arisen from the floor, the golden, glorious opportunity for him to regain the much treasured crown, with its million dollar setting, was gone.

For the round was near its end and what little close punching Dempsey landed availed nothing.

There seems to be no explanation for Dempsey's failure to rush Tunney after he climbed to his feet, except one of confidence that if he did not nail Tunney in that seventh he certainly could do it in the eighth. He must have felt that he had Tunney mortally wounded and that if he did not get him then he surely would succeed in the eight, ninth or tenth.

Holds Foe in Check

But Tunney performed a mild comeback in the eighth and held Dempsey in check, came with a great rally in the ninth and with a hurricane burst of speed and a volley of punches in the final round.

It was the decisive margin that Tunney scored in those two rounds—the ninth and tenth, that gave him victory.

For, as the statistics seemed to read at the end of the eighth, Tunney had won the second, fourth and fifth. Dempsey the third, sixth and seventh, with the first and eighth even.

When Tunney left his corner for the eighth it was 50 to 1 that he wouldn't win. When the eighth round had finished it was all even, with the outcome depending upon the ninth and tenth. And as Tunney rallied and came on with a great finish, Dempsey seemed to falter, to become leg and arm weary.

Age Exacts Toll

Age had exacted its toll from the efforts he made in the seventh and the eighth and the old saying about "they never come back," which Dempsey seemed absolutely certain of shattering in the seventh, once again is proven correct.

It was youth and science that prevailed last night over lion-hearted courage, great punching power—with a long count and a baffling lack of aggressiveness on Dempsey's part, in those precious seconds in the seventh when attack meant triumph, that lost for Dempsey and perpetuated Gene Tunney as king of the heavies.

CAPTURED BY THUGS

Kidnaped in his own automobile, William S. Gilbreath, former manager of the Detroit Automobile club, was forced by three thugs to watch them rob and kidnap two other victims, beating one, Edmund Weiner, so severely that he died a few hours later. For three hours Gilbreath, Weiner and Ted Nolan, whose gasoline station the men robbed, rode in the bandit car before they were dumped out.

TRAFFIC COURT

27 Motorists Assessed $14 in Fines by Judge Martin

Twenty-seven Marion motorists who violated the traffic ordinance during the past week, appeared before Judge Martin in municipal court this morning and $14 in fines were collected.

The number showed a decided dropping off from last week when 46 violators appeared in court and were fined $26. Practically all of the violations both last week and this were for improper lighting, although some were fined for driving past stop signals.

COLORED MAN FINED $20 ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

B. L. Smith, 34, colored, arrested by Erie detectives near the Erie transfer yesterday afternoon on a charge of intoxication and investigation, was fined $20 and costs by Municipal Judge William R. Martin this morning when he pleaded guilty to intoxication. Detectives were curious as to the source of five or six varieties of candy bags which he had in his possession when arrested and placed a charge of investigation against him. This was withdrawn this morning and he was arraigned on the intoxication charge.

MARION MAN RECEIVES WORD OF SISTER'S DEATH

Charles E. Pine, 245 Leader-st, received word today of the death yesterday in Columbus of his sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Porter, widow of Jerome J. Porter. Mrs. Porter had been a Columbus resident for 47 years and was known as an active church worker. She is also survived by two daughters, two grandchildren, a sister and three other brothers. Funeral services will be held in Columbus today with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery there.

IRISH ELECTIONS

Irish elections have resulted in a gain of seven seats for the government, but Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail party also got seven seats and James Larkin, above, Communist, was elected from Dublin. Tom Johnson, below, leader of the labor party, was defeated in County Dublin, a heavy blow to his followers. For five years Johnson has been one of the leaders in the Dail Eireann.

Five Persons Quarantined Improving, Health Commissioner Says

No additional cases of smallpox had been reported to the health department at noon today and it is the belief of health officials that there will be no further spread of the disease.

The five persons under quarantine, City Health Commissioner Weiser said today, are improving. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Massie are ill from the malady at their home on Boulevard-st while their son-in-law, William Hoffman, and his four-year-old son are recovering from an attack of the disease at their home on Tully-st.

It has been definitely established that the disease was brought to this city by a granddaughter of the Massies, who returned several weeks ago from a visit with her mother in Kalamazoo, Mich. She told Sanitary Commissioner Weiser that she had played with a little girl whose face was broken out. She said the [illegible]

FIRST BANK REPORT SHOWS INCREASE

School Students Deposit $937.18 in Year's Initial Period

The first school bank report for the year, totalling $973.18, as submitted today, is slightly more than at the opening of the school term last year and slightly lower than at the close of the term. With few exceptions the amount gradually increases with each report during the year.

Totals for the bank report this week were $880.51 in the grade schools and $92.67 at Harding High School.

The system of school banking was inaugurated in local schools in April, 1926, for the purpose of encouraging a disposition to save and a realization of the value of money at an early age.

STOLL SERVICES ARE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Albert Stoll, who died Tuesday night at his home, 108 Elk-ave, were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Emmanuel Baptist Church, followed by burial in Marion Cemetery. Rev. Earl L. Holliday, pastor of the church, officiated.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT JACK'S PLANS

was different. There was no wife to share bad news when he returned to the Hotel Sherman. No seclusion. No doctor to treat him. Instead, he reaped the fruits of victory, accepting the enthusiastic congratulations of an army of friends. Then a bath, a rubdown and then a victory banquet and reception. He planned to leave on the Twentieth Century for New York today.

Tunney discussed his victory modestly, generously giving Dempsey credit for the great fight he put up.

In No Hurry

"I was not hurt when I took the count of nine in the seventh round and thought it was just as well to take my time in rising," said the champion.

Tunney smiled deprecatingly when told of the cry that has arisen from the Dempsey camp that Jack was robbed by a slow count in the seventh.

Dempsey, in discussing the dramatic seventh round after the battle, emphasized that he did not want to offer any alibi for his defeat but added:

"I believe I really knocked Tunney out in that round. Surely he got a generous count. It gave him enough extra time to clear his head and get on his bicycle. I am told that my manager's stop watch ticked off 14 seconds while Tunney was on the floor."

Flynn Plans Protest

Dempsey's seventh round knockdown of Tunney, however, was the subject of animated discussion everywhere today, and Dempsey's manager, Leo P. Flynn stated to International News Service that he was going before the Illinois Boxing Commission as soon as possible and file a formal protest.

"A dozen stop watches showed Tunney down for 14 seconds," said Flynn. "Tunney is champion by grace of colossal inefficiency. When Jack came to his corner after the round, Jack said to me: 'I can't whip both Tunney and the referee.'"

George Lytton, one of the two judges who awarded the decision to Tunney, declared today that if Dempsey had Gene to a neutral corner three seconds sooner after flooring his opponent he would have won the fight.

Beat Himself

"He beat himself by not getting back to neutral territory soon enough so that the count could be started," said Lytton.

"Dempsey himself insisted on the rule that the man who scored the knockdown should move to a neutral corner before the count was begun. That has been Dempsey's contention ever since the Firpo fight."

The knockdown of Tunney was the first the champion had experienced in his career. Two left hooks to the jaw and a right cross to the jaw sent Tunney to the floor near Dempsey's corner and close to the ropes. Dempsey stood over the prostrate foe, ready to renew his attack and prove that "they can come back" when Referee Barry motioned Dempsey to neutral territory. This consumed several seconds and then the count began.

Tunney, his eyes glassy, was in a half-sitting, half-kneeling position on the floor. Pain was written all over his countenance. The Dempsey blows certainly contained dynamite. At the count of nine Tunney just barely managed to get to his rubbery legs. He survived the round by circling the ring half a dozen times with Dempsey pursuing him and subsequently came back strong to win the 10-round decision.

Marion Losers In Fight Bets Gasp And Groan As Extravagant Wagers Are Paid

AFTER the storm, the deluge—after the fight, payment of bets.

The aches and pains of Jack Dempsey, the ex-champ, and his peer, the classic Gene Tunney today, following their fistic struggle for the coveted heavyweight crown in Chicago, last night, are practically nothing compared to the agonies which will be suffered by losing fight fans of Marion.

This morning saw the start of the payment of fight wagers by those august Marionites who until last night were ardent admirers of one Jack Dempsey.

E. J. Bowen, street car conductor, one of those lads who had the inside dope that the Manassa Mauler was going to do most of the mauling in the battle, this afternoon is looking for a plaster that is large enough to cover a sore back. And the cause for this discomfort is the result of the payment of a bet with a peanut.

Sure of Dempsey

Bowen who was so sure that Dempsey would be wearing the dollar-sign studded crown today, was taken up on his wager to that effect by L. P. Landon, street car motorman. The loser of the bet, the two men agreed, would roll a peanut from State-st to Greenwood-st on Fairground-st.

The loser, which of course turned out to be Bowen, made good his wager in the presence of a gallery of 200 persons at 9 o'clock, this morning. Still cherishing the thought that Jack is a great fighter, Bowen appeared at the scene with his peanut and 40 minutes later ended his roll down the street. For good measure he rolled the nut to the opposite side of Greenwood-st.

But at the end of the trip, he had just begun to pay his debt and soon realized it when he attempted to straighten up after having pushed the peanut with his hand those 40 minutes.

Husband-Wife Bet

Evidence that husbands and wives do not always agree but sometimes carry out their promises, was to be shown today when another fight bet was to be paid off between a married couple in East Marion.

The wife, who happened to win this bet, is to be the passenger of a one-horse wagon pulled from Barnhart-st to the courthouse and return by her husband some time today.

E. C. Mackan, noted Marion sportsman, guessed wrong last night and had to make good his word to Ira Shrock, Marion policeman, immediately following the battle. The bet arranged between these two individuals also required not a little labor on the part of the loser, in that he was compelled to cart six heavy no-parking signs from in front of the Marion Star to the interurban station.

He accomplished the deed and paid his bet while a large crowd was being entertained.

Wins Double Wages

It will take three months for Harold "Monk" McCurdy to compensate for a mistake he made last night. He believed the ex-champ would survive. As a result for the next 90 days he has pledged himself to pay his assistant, Gilbert Gilmore, double wages. McCurdy is a truck driver. If Dempsey had won Gilmore would have labored the next three months for nothing. Payment of the wager started today.

Many cigars changed hands during the night and today. The losers of the fight bets playing the position of donor to the jubilant winners.

"Louie" Paulson, of the Midway Restaurant, another of the Dempseyites, not only paid his debt of a cigar to his betting partner, but acted the role of the loser in good manner. As the bet was for the largest cigar he could find, "Louie" had a special cigar, many times larger than the usual type, made by the Marion Cigar Co. and presented that to the winner.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS EYE OHIO

Political observers throughout the nation are casting eyes toward Ohio in the consideration of presidential timber for the 1928 race. Five Ohioans have been mentioned as possibilities. They are Senators Frank B. Willis and Simeon D. Fess, and Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives; Newton D. Baker, Woodrow Wilson's secretary of war, and Governor Vic Donahey, Democrats, Ohio, with seven presidents to her credit, is runner-up to Virginia, "Mother of Presidents," which has sent eight men to the White House.

PREPARE APPEAL

Attorneys for Lengel Seek New Trial for Client

Canton, Sept. 23—Attorneys for S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief now serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for complicity in the Don Mellett murder, today were completing preparations for their appeal for a new trial.

Judge Frank M. Clevenger, of Wilmington, O., was in the city today to hear the proceedings. Lengel's attorneys claim that Mrs. Alice Craig, one of the jurors in the ex-chief's trial, expressed the opinion, before she was sworn in, that he was guilty.

The shortest war was that declared by the Sultan of Zanzibar against Great Britain in 1893; it lasted forty minutes.

FOUR DRY AGENTS HELD FOR MURDER

Accused of Slaying Aged Farmer in Raid at Maryland Home

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 23—Four federal dry agents were under first degree murder indictments today for the killing of Charles Gundlach, 77-year-old farmer, during a raid here last week.

They were to be arraigned today. The indictment of all four agents by the grand jury was a surprise. It had been anticipated that the jury would indict only Randolph Brewer for murder.

Gundlach's widow testified that Brewer fired a pistol through her husband's brain as he lay wounded on the porch of their home.

The other three agents indicted were D. M. Jackson of Washington, R. S. Cornett of Leonardtown and John T. Fisher.

"I am going to fight to the last ditch to send Brewer to the gallows for the slaying of Gundlach," said Philip A. Dorsey, state's attorney. Dorsey intimated that he might seek to have charges of manslaughter placed against the other agents.

Daily Proverb—"To know one's self is true progress."

The Younger Over the Older.

Tex Rickard's second "Battle of the Century" is over, leaving sports followers to devote their complete attention to the increasingly complicated National League race.

And, today they say, "It's true, they just can't come back." Those who paid anything from five to forty dollars, providing they were able to see at all, apparently got their money's worth. It was a great fight, with both boxers tearing into each other, determined for a knockout, but with the younger Tunney the master of the situation, the master of the older Dempsey.

As in all fights there were several upsets. Dempsey was picked by the majority of sports "experts" to regain his championship from Gene Tunney. These writers disregarded the age theory, that a younger man, in the same physical fine condition as an older man, has the advantage.

The outcome of last night's Dempsey-Tunney championship bout gives last year's and this year's bouts a clean slate. Thousands were dubious about last night's fight. They saw money in it. Gene won last year. They feared either a draw or a Dempsey victory last night. Either result could mean another bout. And, with the foolish and nasty jibes that had been hurled back and forth between the two camps this week a stench would be created that not even the most satisfactory explanations could smother.

Interest in last night's fight was nationwide. Newspapers throughout the length and breadth of the land entertained readers with parties and extras just as the Star did in Marion, while radio parties were countless. Homes whose occupants have never seen a prize ring heard "lefts" and "right jabs" flying through the ether. Such is the hold sport has taken upon us.

"Two men refuse to leave city, jailed," reads a headline in our paper. Well, that's a pretty hopeful sign.

Filling a Big Niche.

"If a thing is worth having, it is worth fighting for," might easily have been one of the life slogans of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, for his life was filled with fighting for the prohibition cause to which he had devoted his efforts for years.

When he passed away, the men and women who had been fighting in the rank and file behind him in the dry cause, paused a moment and looked about them, asking "Who of us will be big enough and strong enough to fill his shoes?"

When the possible successors to the Anti-Saloon league chieftain were sifted out only one remained, the league found its leader, Rev. F. Scott McBride. His record pleased them greatly. It includes a service of thirteen years as superintendent of the state forces of the league in Illinois, previous to having been made general superintendent of the league in the United States, from which position he was elevated to the place made vacant by Mr. Wheeler's death.

Opportunity usually brings out the strength in a man with a capacity for doing big things. Rev. McBride has an opportunity to serve the cause he has espoused, in a big way and his fellow-workers believe that he has he capacity to do so.

Here's a point. Is any one sure Mrs. Smith gave birth to a baby at all?

Need No Imported Guidance.

American labor is well able to take care of its own problems without the unsolicited interference of foreign labor and political influences, parading under the guise of proletarianism, says Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

He points out that the activities of organized labor in America do not trespass on foreign labor fields and do not transgress on the activities of foreign labor movements. Consequently, he points out, American labor likewise holds that it is best qualified to determine the course of action that American labor shall follow.

The American labor leader says that he does not attempt to analyze the motives that prompt alien organizations to offer guidance to American workingmen, adding that, whether or not they serve hidden purposes in the lands of their origin they can have no constructive objective in our country. They may be but the cowardly efforts, he says, of such influences to hide ulterior purposes within their own lands.

This patriotic attitude by one of the great leaders of labor in the nation, who was himself born an alien, will strike a responsive note in the minds and hearts of many of his fellow-citizens whether employers or employed.

They, too, believe that American labor needs no foreign guidance, much less the showings of violent demonstrations. They agree with Woll that there is no need for revolutionary principles or practices and that, in a land of democracy appeal to revolutionary phrases and violent demonstrations only arouses confusing passions, fires conflicting emotions and divides the great mass of wage-earners, only to their great loss and detriment.

Wo Ist Mein Kartoffel?

Where are the German dishes of yesteryear?

Why is it that one no longer scents so often the tempting aroma of the heady Teuton tasties that once emanated from so many homes of sons and daughters of the Fatherland?

Frau Hedwig Heyl, generally regarded as Germany's foremost authority on domestic education and food preparation, admits sadly that things are not as they once were with the good old German cooking.

She blames the frauleins, which probably is only natural when one grows a bit older. Girls nowadays think of nothing but aping men instead of fitting themselves to be homemakers, so of course, one can't expect them to be so adept at mixing up a batch of lebkuchen or concocting a tasty bowl of gabrannetmehlsuppe as their mothers and grandmothers were.

If German cooking is deteriorating as Frau Heyl seems to think it is, it will mark the passing of a school of culinary art whose products stuck to the ribs and made healthy, happy people of its devotees.

One recalls the knoepfle, the hassenpfeffer and the kartoffel glace of the good old German hausfrau with recollections that makes one's mouth water.

To some gourmets, whose palates may have been more sensitively attuned to the more delicate nuances in things culinary, the dishes of the French may have a more subtle appeal. A French chef can take a bit of oil, a wisp of green-stuff, a dash of this and a pinch of "je ne sais quoi" and produce something that intrigues the taste but leaves one mystified and unsatisfied.

It is otherwise with the dishes concocted across the Rhine. The thought of German cooking brings a vision of a generous oven in an expanse of spotless kitchen, presided over by a red-cheeked fraulein or a laughing, expansive frau, cooking up delicious concoctions in great kettles or baking pans, from which come odors that would tempt the most dyspeptic.

If the German girls are aping the men, instead of cooking, as Frau Heyl says, they may find that the men are more interested in being cooking for than in being aped.

Be yourself. First, Lindy charmed Europe with his simplicity. Now Jimmy Walker does the same thing with his wisecracks and lack of punctuality.

Not So Bad.

This human race of our is constantly being cuffed, slapped and insulted. We're told we are in a jazz age, an age that holds no serious thought, thinks of nothing that will benefit humanity.

But, we're not as bad as all that.

Take, for example, the plea that was made through the Star Wednesday night for beds and a baby carriage for a destitute mother and her three children.

Within twenty-four hours the Star was able to report that Marion citizens lost no time in making generous offers. As a result these little children will need suffer no more. The good citizens of Marion have seen that this mother and her babies will have not only beds and a baby carriage, but plenty of clothing and bedding in the future.

Automobile tourists certainly have "made" many hotels during the past several years. Here it is the first day of autumn and yet Inn-Keeper James A. Deal's rendezvous has its fifteen-guest capacity stretched to accommodate thirty-seven.

Mechanical Hands for Mother.

Most everybody remembers the rather ambiguous advertisement of a laundry which suggested to husbands: "Why kill your wife with housework? Let us do the dirty work."

The Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, with which a great many Marion club women are affiliated has come forward with the assertion that, even if Ohio husbands are not trying to kill their wives with housework, a lot of the women-folks are doing more of the dirty work than they should be expected to do.

Declaring war upon useless, back-breaking drudgery in Ohio households, a campaign for adequately-equipped homes is to be started by the state club federation, with district conferences in eight parts of Ohio. Marion county will be included in one of the districts.

Lots of women, they say, do not realize just how much fun housekeeping really can be, with the proper amount of gas and electric doodads and thing-a-ma-jigs. Just because their grandmothers wove cloth, carried water, washed the clothes in the creek, dipped candles for lighting, cooked the meats over a hot open fireplace, and died early, they can see no reason why hardships similar to those should be endured today by any one.

While America, and Ohio particularly, is far in advance of other parts of the globe in the use of bath tubs, there are still a great many households, not far from home, where Saturday night means nothing more than the sixth evening the week.

The days are past, they say, when the so-called weaker sex are supposed to be the carriers of water and the hewers of wood and, if Father can have all the labor-saving devices that modern invention can devise to help him in his work, there doesn't seem to be any sensible reason why Mother shouldn't put to work all the mechanical hands she can muster into service.

And, now comes the period of psychology when football headlines reveal coaches as pleased, displeased, gloomy, pessimistic to the nth degree.

And, speaking of football, isn't it funny how a bunch of husky youths who ordinarily would flatten the countenance of any one who intimated they were a bunch of "rah-rah" boys will shed tears and beg humble pardons when told they are yellow, cowards, dumb and not worth their salt, between halves of a gridiron spectacle.

And, now arrives the day when the prophets who took a long chance and guessed wrong on last night's outcome of the Chicago affair do what Senor Groundhog does when he sees his shadow on February 2.

Paralysis Due to No Exercise.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

All animals have their ailments. Whether they are human beings or members of the lower families, they are subject to the diseases of their kind.

We go to the zoo to see the animals. Some are surly, some are snarling, but some are sad, dejected and quiet.

When men and women neglect to exercise they lose their muscular power. When animals in the zoo are forced to go without exercise they sometimes develop "cage paralysis."

"Every dog has his day," the old saw goes, but every day should be the dog's day. He longs to run, to roam the woods, to race, to cover the country round about.

No cat is a real cat unless it is out at night. That is its natural play time.

But when dogs and cats are made pets, their natural liberty is forever lost. They are tied up, or house bound. Their roaming days are ended. Some form of paralysis is not uncommon.

How many of your friends suffer from a kind of human "cage paralysis?" They never exercise unless they must. They sit when they should stand and stand when they should walk. They never run, or jump. Dignity and quiet are their watchwords.

The only thing I have against the automobile is that it has taken away from men and women their old-time walking habits. In a town where I used to live, the lawyers and bankers and merchants walked to business. Today they never walk—the automobile has taken the place of shoe leather.

Nobody should eat much if he does not exercise. But our cage-bound brothers and sisters eat just as much as they did when they walked. In consequence they taken on weight. The muscles are soft and flabby and the entire body suffers the general decay bound to follow overeating and underexercising.

Make up your mind not to get human-cage paralysis. Govern your life so that simple eating and daily exercise are a part of the program.

In the country it is not uncommon to laugh at golf, but it must be admitted that the game has done the city man a tremendous amount of good. He gets out on the sod. He spends those hours in the open air and sunlight. He exercises his muscles.

If you have no wood to cut, hay to pitch you will do well to swim, ride a horse or play handball. Tennis and every muscle game is good for you if your heart and lungs are good.

Guard your appetite. Yes—let me put it another way—guard your appetites. Be temperate in all things and so live that cage paralysis will never attack you.

Editorial Comment.

THE MARSHALL BILL.

There are two cardinal objections to the Marshall bill which, in our opinion, call for an adverse vote on the measure in November.

1. If the bill becomes a law, the amount of the liquor court magistrate's monthly compensation will depend upon the fees he has earned. Say that his fee for hearing and deciding a case would be five dollars. If he had one case in a month he would be paid five dollars out of the county treasury; if he had fifty cases, he would receive $250 for his month's work, the maximum amount allowed by the bill. We all know enough about human nature to know that the magistrate would be under strong temptation to make $250 a month by seeing to it that sufficient arrests were made to bring that sum into his pockets. Moreover, since he would know that he would be accused of having merely drummed up cases for his own pecuniary advantage if a large percentage of persons brought into his court were found not guilty, he would be under strong temptation to find a large percentage of them guilty. He naturally would try to escape the charge of making a business of false arrests; he would be tempted, first, to have enough persons brought into his court to insure his making as much money as possible, and, secondly, to justify himself in so doing by finding all or most of them guilty as charged, however flimsy the evidence. The bill provides, somewhat indirectly but none the less effectively, for a financially interested and therefore not open-minded court. When that is true, as the supreme court of the United States said and as one's own intelligence tells him, the accused is denied due process of law.

2. A bad means does not promote a good end. Under the old system the gross corruption resulting in the vicinity of large cities became notorious. Commercialized magistrates, not content with the large income procured by means legal at the time, went into cahoots with bootleggers and hijackers. Seized liquor and bribery swelled their bank accounts. It is no defense of the system to say that only twenty or twenty-five of the 2000 justices of Ohio became so involved. It may be true that not more than twenty or twenty-five fell foul of the law or were openly accused but it is fair to suppose that not all who engaged in those wicked practices for which an unconstitutional system gave opportunity were caught and exposed, and even twenty or twenty-five is a considerable percentage of the number of justices having their courts close to great centers of population, where the opportunities for such crookedness are favorable. Human nature has not changed in the last few months and there is not a particle of doubt that the deplorable conditions which obtained under the old commercialized system would obtain under the new. Such conditions do not aid in the enforcement of a difficult law but, on the other hand, influence people to hold the law itself in contempt.

There are two sides to every question. No doubt many honorable, patriotic, intelligent, disinterested people, who are their own bosses, intend to support the Marshall bill in the hope that, if it goes into effect, it will be of assistance in the hard task of prohibition enforcement. We cannot but think, however, that the more the bill and its probable effects are pondered by such people the fewer of them will support it. Our own conviction is that the bill will not stand close scrutiny and what we hope is that the issue will be decided thoughtfully by individual voters and not thoughtlessly because a committee of some fine organization, a church or a grange, has succeeded in putting the organization on record as indorsing the measure.—Ohio State Journal.

PROGRESS AND PENALTIES.

"During this experimental period we may expect casualties. Yet totally to restrict hazardous flights would be placing a ban on scientific progress."

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh speaks with timeliness and authority. Without hazardous experimentation small progress can be made in any difficult field of scientific advance. Transoceanic flights, if properly conceived and wisely considered, are scientific experiments, and without such practical experiments inter-continental air communication can never be made safe and practical.

At present there is a universal wave of revulsion against haphazard ocean flying. The world has seen the tragic results of a mania, and it has unjustly condemned all flying over the oceans as a manifestation of this mania. And, it must be admitted, much or most of this condemnation has been warranted. Ocean hops at present are mostly in the nature of stunts. Everything possible should be done to discourage them. But no discouragement should be raised as an obstacle to prevent experts and adepts like Lindbergh and Byrd, men who have contributed bravely and valuably to the progress of aviation from carrying on whatever experiments may be deemed necessary. For this reason Cleveland is thoroughly justified in not withdrawing the offer of the Herrick prize for the first flight from Paris to Cleveland. For this reason Colonel Lindbergh speaks quite as sanely as usual when he protests against any blanket and undiscriminating condemnation of all ocean flights.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Always be glad it's no worse. When you complain because you have a tooth pulled or have to take on some other minor operation think of fifteen-year-old Jimmy McLean, of Boston. He has had 100 serious operations and will have to have one about every two months. He swallowed caustic soda, thinking it was water. It closed up his throat. He takes his food through a tube. Every little while he has to be operated on and the tube adjusted. He also underwent a half dozen operations as the result of infantile paralysis.

Be glad for what you've got—or haven't.

About 20,000,000 pupils are in public schools this year. Two billion dollars will be spent on them from public funds. That is as it should be. We ought to be glad to know that this is more than the cost of the army and navy put together. Joseph Choate was right, years ago, when he said that education is the leading American industry. And it ought to be bigger than it is.

If you are thinking of buying a home or building one, don't delay in the hope that there will be a more economical time by and by. The population of this country is going up fast. The demand for homes increases. Labor is no more plentiful than it was and will be less so. Wages are up to stay. Do it now.

Not enough people are interested in what can be done with plants and vegetables. Burbank led the way, but there have been few to follow. In New Jersey experiments have produced blueberries seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. Too bad more people are not experimenting in the gardens instead of on the golf course. Why not a strawberry as big as a pineapple?

Young folk mustn't get the idea that everything today is bigger than it used to be. In 1863 a balloon was built that had a bag with a capacity of 450,000 cubic feet. It would lift forty passengers. It is probably the largest balloon ever built. New things are not only not always bigger—they are not always better.

There is ripe opportunity for inventors. The paper industry consumes more than a billion acres of forest every year. The world will reward the man who gives it a good substitute for pulp wood in the making of print paper. In 1840 some people thought all the inventions had been made. It was even suggested by one enthusiast that the patent office be abolished. The age of invention is just well under way. There is much to come.

HERITAGE.

Of the two things that I'd present my son—
Wealth and character—
Unfortunately I can give but one,
Which will suffice
His needs a trillion times exceeding thrice,
And strength as the years pass by;
He will not squander it, I know,
Great fortunes come and go,
But it's as lasting as the sky.

Of the two things that I would teach my son—
Work and idleness—
In following my steps, the foremost one
Will be impressed
Upon him by the mighty Lord's behest,
And it will recompense him more than I
Were kingdoms guided by my hand
And opulence at my command
The while it takes a man to live and die.

The roots of anarchy
Set deeper in the soil of thought
When one becomes a hero
And a thousand come to naught.

Catalina Island.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Los Angeles, Sept. 23—Every tourist goes to Catalina island in a glass-bottom boat—to see the fish can see them. It is a two-hour trip and the island is a monument to the nation's industrious jaws, for it is owned by Mr. Wrigley, the chewing gum man.

The water through the thick glass is the greenish blue of aqua marine. The magnified fish present a grotesque spectacle. There are eyes resembling searchlights of goblin-like autos at night. Twisting tenacles of what looks like octopii.

Wiggling reptile things with luminous skin. Many appear to rest on their fins to gape and gulp. "Reminds me of my first attack of D. T.'s," said a passenger. The sea foliage swells the glamour that spreads about the eternal mystery of the deep. It seems beauty in arrogance at mere man.

Another pleasant jaunt is to see the big trees near Sequoia, surpassing in beauty the famed forests of Fontainbleau. The giant trees, several of which can be driven through, are overwhelming in majesty. And among tourists was a Broadway song writer seeking inspiration.

He had already arrived at: "Just a tree—you and me." And had thousands of more trees to see. Near Los Angeles is Will Rogers' training farm, a plateau on a small mountain top. It is where Rogers satisfies his early cowboy longing for wild mustangs.

He has invested wisely in semi-mountainous regions. And spies tell me he long ago passed his first million. Venice is the Coney Island of the community with mechanical swings, airships and other joyful make-believe whoopde-doos.

Overheard in a cafe:

"Have you heard the latest Hollywood scandal?"

"No, but I believe it."

Scandal mongering is one of the fine arts of cinema land. The strange thing is that little of it is true, but everybody believes it.

Californians motor with dogs on the running boards. Also on the car roofs. The police dog is the favorite. This morning I made a boob spelled backwards of myself again in Beverly, chasing with the speed of a Hollywood bullet a man whose dog toppled from a side perch.

After four blocks I panted, "Mister, you lost your dog." And he replied a little annoyed, the dog often hopped off to follow afoot. It was remindful of the drunk who fell off a Broadway surface car, turned two somersaults and when a passerby tried to assist him from the gutter the drunk explained: "S'allright, I always get off that way."

Hollywood gin is known far and wide as the most potent beverage in the world. Old Bowery third-rail rotgut is pink tea in comparison. Those who know say it is responsible for many of the three-day pajama orgies—and they do have them—ending up with a visit by the coroner to add-up the bullet holes. Many debauches are indulged by people only remotely connected with the movies—assistant gardeners, property men, painters and such, but they emblazon first pages as movie scandals. It is said some gin is bootlegged for $1.50 a quart. Another drink is grape or jackass brandy. It is about 110 proof and after two jolts the evening becomes a complete blurr. Nobody seems to know, when questioned in their cells, just exactly what happened on the fatal evening. Or who fired the first shot.

The ace view in California to me is the orange groves—acres of bright green dotted with splashes of burnished gold—and surrounded by the hazy, purplish cowling mountain sides whose gigantic peaks are white with snow.

CAPTAIN E. S. LAND.

Captain Emory S. Land, formerly chief of the material division of the bureau of naval aeronautics, succeeded Commander John Rodgers, hero of the Hawaiian flight, as assistant chief of the bureau of naval aeronautics. Commander Rodgers had asked to be relieved of shore duty to command a new plane squadron for long-distance scouting. This was in 1926, shortly before Rodgers' tragic death. Captain Land is responsible to Edward P. Warner, assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aviation.

The naval air status recently was praised by Captain Land.

"As a result of extensive flight competition tests," he said, "a training plane has been developed which is believed to be the equal of any training plane in the world and for naval training purposes is believed to be superior to any other training plane in the world. These planes are now in use.

"As a result of an experimental order, there has been designed, developed and constructed an observation plane which, as a flying machine, is the equal of any plane in the world, and so far as information is available, is superior. This is the O 2 U—Corsair—around the Wasp engine, which plane has already established four world's records and is an outstanding plane of its type. From all information available, it is believed to be superior to any other type of observation seaplane in existence.

"As a result of extended flight competitions, two types of battleship fighting planes have been developed which for installation on board ship are believed to be the equal of, if not superior to, any other planes of their type.

"If a national emergency were declared today, naval aviation would be in a position to place its orders immediately for the types best suited to the service. These types are already in production. This does not mean that the ultimate is reached in any type, nor does it mean that naval aviation is satisfied with all types. That form of standardization would mean crystallization and therefore no progress. The criterion, however, is to be in a position to know what you want in time of emergency to have your plans and specifications ready and your trade tooled up ready to produce on a moment's notice. This is the condition that obtains in naval aviation today."

Today's Events.

ELKS' LODGE HEARS RETURNS ON FIGHT

Regular Meeting Adjourned Early To Enable Members To Get Radio Report

Returns of the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight fight at Chicago, were heard through radio following the regular business session of Marion Lodge, No. 32, Order of Elks, last night.

Only routine business was transacted and the meeting was adjourned early.

Marion lodge will vote along with other Elks' lodges of the United States on the proposed change in the constitution in regard to the establishment of a junior order of Elks, at the first meeting night in October. One vote is to be given to each lodge. The majority will determine the way the vote is to be sent to headquarters in connection with the constitution change.

R. E. Prettyman, who was named chairman of the committee to investigate the efficiency of the bridge players of Marion Elks, is planning to announce the entrance of Marion Lodge into the national bridge contest, indorsed by Elks. Prettyman has sent requests to members of the local order asking them to get in touch with him if they will enter the competition, representing Marion Lodge.

Legion Celebrates as News of Fight Arrives in Paris

Paris, Sept. 23—The American legion stayed up all night to hear the result of the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago.

Scattered throughout cafes and night clubs in Montmartre and elsewhere, thousands of visiting Legionnaires "made a night of it." When the news that Tunney had won by a decision was flashed through the city about 5 o'clock this morning, there was general cheering and applause, followed by a fusillade of popping corks.

Tunney's victory met with the approval of the Legion crowd because of his war record, while thousands of ex-service men have never quite forgiven Dempsey for working in the shipyards during the war.

Get Detailed Report

A round-by-round account of the bout was received in Harry's New York bar in the Rue Daunou and relayed elsewhere. There was an almost unanimous groan of regret when Tunney went on his back in the seventh round, followed by cheers when he came back to win.

The attitude of the Legionnaires toward the fight was demonstrated in an official action of the convention yesterday when the delegates unanimously voted to cable Gene "hearty good wishes."

Aside from the big fight, the official culmination of the convention made last night a particularly wild and uproaring one for the Legionnaires. The official ending of the convention sessions released thousands of veterans who had been tied up all week by official business.

At 2 o'clock this morning, it was absolutely impossible to find an empty seat in any of the boulevard cafes.

Figures gathered in a recent survey of the Japanese movie business show that the Japs produced, during the last year, 855 feature productions, while America totaled 740.

Japan has 37 picture companies, all their productions made for home consumption. Tokio, Kyoto, Knobe, Nagoya, Osaka and other cities have film companies. There is no Japanese Hollywood—a film center.

There are no neighborhood movies in Japan, all theaters being in segregated districts. About 100 "fan" magazines are published.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. Frank Sellers, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning thru their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it recommend it to their daughters as a dependable medicine.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," etc.

Read This First

SALLY JEROME, 20 and pretty clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has been separated from her mother for nine years.

The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, Beau, a son, Millie, a daughter, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome is a semi-invalid so Sally does the housework morning and works for MR. KEY downtown afternoons.

Ted Sloan, the flat below the Jeromes is in love with Sally. Mrs. Jerome is dreadfully afraid that Sally will marry him. Sally has nothing for him except friendship. The only man she is interested in is JOHN NYE, whose office is across the hall from Key's on the Nye-Taylor building.

Sally drops in to Sally's office one day with the news that she has resigned her job. Millie is always losing her jobs because her employers make love to her. At least, that is her story always.

Sally catches a glimpse of John Nye "falls for him," and threatens to ask him for a job. Sally prevents her from doing this, but later, when she asks Sally if she knows of anyone to take the place of his secretary, who is getting married, she tells him about Millie. He is called out of town suddenly, but Millie promises to wait until he returns. In the meantime she takes a rest, and borrows some money from Sally to "tide her over"—only $2 for car fare, etc. This, however, is quite an item to Sally, for she earns only $21 a week and Beau and Millie contribute very little to the family's support. Most of the financial burden belongs to Sally.

Beau's girl, MABEL WILMOT, gives a party at the flat and asks Sally to provide the refreshments. Sally does, expecting Beau or Mabel to return to her the money she spends, but they cheerfully refuse to do it. Sally is almost "flat broke" and goes to her AUNT EMILY JEROME for a loan, but Aunt Emily is going into the restaurant business. Disappointed, Sally goes home to find Beau reading an ad for musical instuments, preparing to buy one.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER IX

BEAU glanced up from his newspaper sullenly.

"I don't know why it's any of your business whether I buy myself a guitar or not," he said. "You don't have to pay for it, do you?"

Sally did not answer him at once She dropped down into a chair beside the untidy table and began to brush the crumbs up into a little heap.

"Well, Beau," she began, after a minute, "I don't suppose it IS any of my business if you want to buy a guitar, only—"

She stopped for a second and emptied the contents of her little leather coin purse upon the tablecloth.

"Here's all the money we have to last all week, and this is only Wednesday."

There were four dollar bills and some loose silver. Sally scooped it up into her palm and dropped it back into the little purse.

Her troubled blue eyes went from Beau to Millie, who was languidly smoking a cigaret and dropping the ashes into her empty coffee cup.

"I may have to ask Millie for part of the two dollars I let her have the other day," she said.

Millie laughed. "T. A. G. I." she answered lightly. "T. A. G. I."

Mrs. Jerome leaned forward "What does that mean—T. A. G. I.?" she asked breathlessly. She had hard work keeping up with the slang that Millie and Beau brought home from the workaday world.

"It means 'Try and get it'," Sally answered her solmenly. "In other words, it means that Millie has spent it all and that for that reason I can't get it from her."

"It certainly does. It means just that. I'll tell the waiting world," agreed Millie. "It also means, little Millie had family is dead broke, little Millie had better get busy and wash her hair, instead of having it done in a beauty shop tomorrow. . . . It sure is tough to be poor, isn't it?"

She got up, pulling her crepe kimono tight around her lovely slenderness, and trailed off into her own room. Her voice drifted back to the dining room lazily:

"Sally, make some liquid soap for me, will you, lovey?"

When Millie wanted Sally to do something special for her she always called her "Lovey" and "Sugar" and "Honey baby."

Sally rose now at the sound of her voice. "All right," she called, and then turned to Mrs. Jerome. "Mumsie, don't touch these dishes. I'll be back to clear them away just as soon as I change my dress."

"All right, I guess I'll go and lie down in the porch swing for a bit then," sighed Mrs. Jerome, rising heavily to her feet. "I wish I hadn't eaten a bite of supper. My stomach feels like lead."

She often said this after a meal. But she never missed one.

In the bathroom was a glass fruit jar where Sally saved all the odds and ends of soap. It was half full now.

She took it into the kitchen and emptied it into a little kettle with some water. Then she dropped a pinch of borax into it and left it to boil down into liquid shampoo for Millie's hair.

"Don't forget to squeeze some lemon juice into it, too," Millie said to her when she went into the bedroom to get her bungalow apron. Like most blondes, Millie had an idea that lemon juice would help to keep her hair light. Sometimes she talked about adding some peroxide to the rinse-water, too, but so far she had not done it.

How to keep her hair light was one of life's great problems to Millie. So was the kind of lip-stick to use, the brand of perfume, the right shade of powder.

She gave long, contented hours to her beauty—rubbing cold cream into her fresh skin—blackening her brows and lashes—polishing and pointing her finger-nails.

But she never sewed a button on her clothes, never mended a single pair of her gauzy stockings, never cleaned a pair of her little slippers. It fell to Sally to do all of these things for her, just as she did them for Beau and for Mrs. Jerome.

"I'm going out for dinner tomorrow night with Jimmy Davidson," Millie announced, leaning close to her mirror to inspect a tiny redness on her forehead.

"Dear me, I wonder if that's a hive or a mosquito bite," she murmured, half to herself, scowling at it.

Then she went on: "He's a wonderful guy, Sally. I want you to meet him some time. . . .I've told him all about you. How smart you are and everything. He likes clever girls, who have something on their minds besides their hats, so he says. I don't know what he ever did see in poor little me. . . . Do hurry up with the dishes, Sugar, so you can rinse my hair for me, won't you? I never get the soap out, and it's always so sticky when I do it myself. And I DO want it to look nice for tomorrow night."

"All right," Sally answered absently. She was standing at the open door of the clothes closet, looking at a black satin dress she had been wearing to the office for almost a year.

"That dress is just about worn out," she added. "There's a hole in each sleeve. I don't know whether I could sew it up or not." She hung it over the foot of her bed and went out to the dining room.

Mrs. Jerome was still sitting there, arms crossed over the pages of the woman's magazine she was looking through.

"I was just wondering if I could cut the sleeves of that old black dress of mine," said Sally, leaning over her shoulder to look at a page of fashion prints. "I hate long sleeves anyway, and they say short ones are coming back into style."

"They are. Just look here," her mother replied. "Here's a picture of a dress with hardly any sleeves at all. Just tiny set-in ones. Who's that knocking at the back door?"

Sally went into the kitchen. Outside on the back porch stood Ted Sloan, pipe in mouth, hands in trousers pockets, silently awaiting for her to open the screen door.

"Hello," he said shortly, when he came in and took his usual seat on one corner of the well-scrubbed table. "Where were you tonight?"

She looked up at him with her clear, eager eyes.

"Why, out at Aunt Emily's," she told him, wondering why he looked so grim and serious and why he seemed so moody and down-at-the-mouth.

He said nothing more, but chewed the stem of his pipe thoughtfully while she went in and out of the room, stacking the soiled dishes on the sink.

Wrapped in that same heavy silence, he watched her wash and wipe them, and put them neatly away on the shelves. His eyes followed the quick play of her hands as she poured Millie's shampoo into a bowl, and poured cold water into the pan where it had been made.

"Be back in a jiffy!" she told him, disappearing with it.

When she came back he was standing out on the back porch. Through the screen door she could see his stocky figure, outlined against the darkness.

At the sound of her footsteps behind him on the floor of the kitchen he called to her: "Come here a minute. I want to talk to you."

"Wait a half a second," Sally answered. "I've a couple of things to do."

She did them with that same deft quickness of hers. The bread was rolled in a clean white cloth and laid in the bread-box. The cold sliced meat that was left over from the evening meal went into waxed paper. So did a head of lettuce and half of a cucumber that Millie had left on the kitchen table an hour before, when she helped to get supper.

Then Sally filled a lard pail at the sink and went out on the porch to water her geraniums and to see what Ted Sloan wanted. She thought she knew—

"Move away from my flower box," she told him with elaborate carelessness when she stood beside him at the porch railing. "I want to water my geraniums." There were only three of them in the wooden box that was nailed against the railing. But Sally loved to see their red blooms nodding in the wind when she stood at the kitchen sink washing dishes. She had a passion for flowers.

"Well, what's on your mind, Theodore Roosevelt?" she asked him when she had finished. "Why aren't you with Theodore Roosevelt Sloan."

"You," he said, without turning to look at her. His arms were crossed over his chest and he stood as still as a statue.

Suddenly he did turn with a sharp movement that brought him so close to her that one of his arms rested on her shoulder.

"You," he said again, and then

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

ANNOUNCES GUESTS

"YOU'RE a complete first aid kit, all by yourself," I told Lillian gratefully at her promise to engage the attention of Dicky and his mother while I talked to Philip Veritzen about the invitation to dinner I had given his son, Noel. And, indeed, I knew that without her aid I should have little chance of speaking to my employer without the embarrassment of listeners.

"Done Up in a Neat Package. Always Ready For Emergencies," she quoted laughingly, stressing each word. "But I won't be ready unless I stop gabbing with you and get dressed."

She hurried out of the room, and with the sudden remembrance to something I had omitted, I followed her into the hall, then went to Dicky's room and knocked, giving from force of habit the signal which for years we had used at each other's doors.

I heard a muttered impatient exclamation and guessed that I had committed that heinous crime against masculine comfort, an interruption while shaving. Then he opened the door, and the traces of lather on his face confirmed my guess.

"Well?" His voice held an upward inflection particularly obnoxious to me.

"I am sorry to disturb you," I said coldly. "But I thought you would wish to know that Mr. Veritzen is in Father's room. I told him you would be down as soon as you were dressed."

"You have another think coming," he retorted crossly. "I don't wish to know anything about anybody. But I'll go in and hold his hand and arrange his toupee as soon as I'm dressed myself."

I was too annoyed for mirth, but I found myself smiling nevertheless. He knows perfectly well that Mr. Veritzen's striking silvered hair is his own, and his comment was so childishly spiteful as to be ludicrous.

"I am sure he will enjoy both attentions," I said with carefully assumed meekness, closing the door as I spoke, and hurrying down the corridor to my mother-in-law's room. I knew that she would be seriously offended if I did not stop to offer her assistance in the last touches of her dressing.

She was frowning as I entered, and her hands were fumbling helplessly at the waist fastenings of her old-fashioned but beautiful gray silk gown. Mother Graham has not materially changed her style of gowning in twenty years except to shorten her skirts so that they do not trail upon the steps as she goes down them. And as I faced her disapproving eyes, I made the mental comment, not for the first time, that she fitted the old-time word-limning of an arrogant duchess which novelists were wont to portray.

"You've certainly taken your time about coming to help me," she said peevishly. "You know I never can get these waist fastenings by myself."

"I'm sorry, Mother," I said, pinning my faith to the Scriptural adage concerning a soft answer, and stooping to adjust the refractory fastenings. "I barely got dressed myself in time to receive Lillian, Marion and Mr. Veritzen. Besides I thought Katherine would—"

"She did," Mother Graham interrupted tartly. "But her fingers are all thumbs. Besides she isn't used to these hooks, and you are."

I was glad that my back hand enabled me to hide a smile at her absurd criticism of Katherine, whose professional training has given super skill and deftness to her hands. But there was bitterness mingled with my amusement, for I realized that the pride of my spotless mother-in-law's predecessor for my administrations lay in a very real and gratifying affection for me. It was an ironical twist of Fate, I thought bitterly, that I should have won the love of my husband's mother at first by hostility to me, while the wild adoration which [illegible] had given me

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Today was Friday, and if anyone thinks I am not glad when Friday comes they have got a crack in their brain, and I am gladder when it goes than I am when it comes. I was so tickled that I kicked Jubilee out of bed when I woke up and thought what day it was, and he forgot himself and barked, and then we were both scairt that he ducked under the bed and I made out like I was asleep, and listened for footsteps but I didn't hear any, then I got up and snuck to the head of the stairs and looked down, for my aut might be coming even when there is not any footsteps.

My mother had got the kitchen full of grapes and peaches and currants and gooseberries and everything that she was going to can, so I put the bail of the pail over my neck and let the pail hang down my back and stood around and et until I nearly popped. I had one hand full of peach and the other full of grapes and my mouth full of currants when all at once there was my mother, and I laid down everything but the currants as fast as I could and got out of the kitchen, because I knew she would be blaming me. A boy gets blamed for everything.

Jubilee ran into a yard on the way to school and trotted around back of a house and then he came out of the yard on the other side of the house like a bullet out of a gun, or like a boy out of his shirt when he is going swimming, and a yellow cat with its tail as big around as my arm was chasing him, and he ran in amongst our other dogs and then they all got after the cat and chaseted it back again, and Jubilee had a scratch on his nose that was bleeding. He must of found the cat before he knew it was there. Always when he sees a cat he gives it lots of warning that he is coming, and then if the cat don't skin out he does. He has got as much sense as a human being.

When we went into our yard with the cows there was dishpan full of grapestking and seeds that my mother had squoze the juice out of by pressing them in a tablecloth or some of Annabelle Lee's clothes or some thing, and I we each got a handful and tasted it and when we found it was not any good Pickles smeared the Last Rag's of Tripe's face with it. The Last Rag of Tripe thought it was funny and smeared him and somebody put about a peck of it in one of my ears. My mother smelt out and stopped us.

Sloop's mother paid a fine for Sloop this afternoon and won't have to go to jail. Sloop's brother has got been caught. His father says he is a pickle-head an numskull. He's more than [illegible]

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE B. VINCENT

Seal Cub's Cradle Song

"I INTENDED to keep watch beside the weary stranger until she awakened, but the warm sun and the soothing lapping of the waves upon the rocks were too much for me, and soon I, too, had gone to Dreamland. Goodness knows how long I slept — time counts for little in the life of a Turtle, he has so much of it to spare—but when I opened my eyes, what do you think I saw?

"'What?' demanded the Turtles and the Terrapins and the Tortoises, in chorus.

"The cunningest, fattest little cub you could imagine, and it was snuggled close to the stranger's side.

"'Good gracious, when did that little fellow arrive?' gasped I. 'He looks like you!'

"'And so he should bless his little heart, for he is my baby son and he arrived while you were asleep.

'Go to sleep, my little blue-eyed Seal-kin
Safe from harm 'neath Mammy's watchful eye.
Slumber on the bare rock
High above the waters.
While the ocean croons a lullaby!'

crooned the big stranger to the tiny one, gently fanning it with her funny flippers. But I was puzzled no longer. I had guessed who my guest was.

"'Welcome to the rock, Mother Seal!' cried I. 'I have been here so long by myself I am glad to have company. Even a Turtle gets lonely with only the sand and the sea for company. That's a very pretty cradle song you are singing to your cub!'

"'How nice of you to give me such hearty greetings, Turtle. I am glad you like my lullaby—'tis one my mother sang to me,' declared Mother Seal, and she bleated with pleasure.

Then suddenly her expression changed and she clapped a flipper to her head.

"'Oh, dear me, Turtle, how my head does ache! No wonder, with the blow it received!'"

TWO ARE HURT IN COLLISION

Upper Sandusky Persons Figure in Accident Near Delaware

Upper Sandusky, Sept. 23—Word was received here last night that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hare, this city, were seriously injured and Thad Hare, also of this city, was cut and bruised when their Buick sedan collided with a truck on the Columbus-Toledo-rd near Delaware.

They were taken to a Delaware hospital where it was found that Mrs. Hare had received severe lacerations on her face, several ribs broken and it is feared possible internal injuries. Robert Hare had his left elbow crushed and the arm broken just below the elbow. Thad Hare escaped with minor injuries.

The accident occurred about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon as the party were returning from Columbus. According to Robert Hare, owner and driver of the car, he attempted to pass a truck not seeing an approaching car from the opposite direction until it was too late to drop back. To avoid striking the other car he drove his car into the side of the truck. The car was completely demolished.

Greatest results in the classes here were obtained, he said, when the parents and boys cooperated in every possible manner. RIVER PROTEST STARTS PROBE

State Board of Health Taking Hand in Crawford County Contention

Bucyrus, Sept. 23—The condition of the Sandusky River west of the city is the subject of an investigation by the state board of health this week.

Eleven months ago 50 farmers, who represent all but one of the farmers living between the city and the county line, filed complaints against the pollution of the river by the city sewage disposal system.

They asked that the nuisance be abated or entirely eradicated and that the state board take such steps as to make the river west of the city pure and less obnoxious. The complaint was filed by Attorney R. V. Sears.

In response to this request B. M. McDill, assistant to Chief Sanitary Engineer F. H. Waring, came to this city and is now making an exhaustive test of all of the waters of the Sandusky River between Bucyrus and the Wyandot County line. He noted the number of sanitary outlets from the sewer system and the general condition of the river as resulting from the wholesale dumping of the entire city sewage in it. Samples of the water were taken from several points in the course of the river and these samples will be taken to the state office to be analyzed for any impurities it may contain. A report of the condition of the river will be posted with Dr. John E. Monger, state director of health, who will then make his report to the city. A public hearing will be the probable result of the inquiry.

Cannot Afford Change

Officials aver that the system that has been in effect may be not the best but the city cannot afford a new sanitary sewage disposal system. Such a system adequate to take care of the entire city would cost a million and a half dollars. A farm was procured for this express purpose several years ago, but to date the city could not afford to go ahead with the necessary construction to make over the city farm into a modern sewage disposal plant. As the present main sewers of the city are both storm and regular sewers a new system of sewers would be necessary, compelling a complete tearup of city paving to install the new mains. Property owners would necessarily install new sewer connections, as storm water cannot be disposed to a sewage disposal plant.

A compromise will probably be the result of the inquiry. From one source a suggestion came that impounding dams be constructed at several points along the river to impound the river during wet seasons so that the river could be flushed with the water during the dry and low water stage. Such improvement would have to be met by the city treasury. Whether it is profitable to construct improvements along the river, to be used a few years and at great expense, and then when the sewage disposal plant is built to discard will be the big question before the officials.

Secret of Long Life

... last longer than others, not ... because they are of superior ...ion and more robust than ...sociates, but because life with ...has been smoother and more ...

The man who is forced to be the target of devastating jolts and upsets as he travels an his way can hardly be expected to remain a resident of this sphere and to continue functioning usefully as many years as his neighbor who is favored with easy and unimpeded progress.

And so it is with automobiles.

Returning to the junk dealers, we are told by David Wax, veteran trafficker in discarded merchandise at Kenton, that "an automobile may be down but never out, entirely."

That's where we find another marked difference in the comparison with human beings.

He's Through

When man's machanism stops running it's through for once and all time and none of the parts can be salvaged.

"In most instances automobiles relegated to the junk heap are down and entirely unserviceable as a whole but many of the separate units, still in good condition, are salvaged and resold," Mr. Wax says.

When machines go to the junk dealer, however, it is very rare that they can be rebuilt and placed in running order again, the Kenton dealer states. The trip to the junk yard, in other words, is almost invariably the last for any car, whether it originally cost $10,000 or $450.

Investigation showed that an average of about 500 cars are received at the Kenton junk yards annually.

The total in Bucyrus each year runs about the same and the annual accumulation of down-and-outs in Marysville runs about 250.

An interesting comparison is cited in this connection by Mr. Wax, the Kenton junk merchant.

Change in 20 Years

Twenty years ago there was a grand total of 37 automobiles in the city of Kenton and the fact that 500 are now junked there annually furnishes an idea of the amazing increase in motor car production during the two decades.

And while manufacturers and agents have grown wealthy from sale of new cars, Wax has prospered from receiving the vehicles after they have finished their course.

During his many years in business he has purchased and junked hundreds of machines of all sizes, makes, designs and "pedigree."

Marysville is not place of large population, its inhabitants numbering around the 4,000 mark, yet since Jan. 1 of this year about 100 derelict automobiles have been purchased by the Union Junk Co., its leading concern in that line of business. This figure comes from the manager, W. E. Bevard.

Hopeless Wrecks

As a rule, Mr. Bevard says, the machines brought to his place are junk and nothing else. Attempts to place them in running order again are usually unsuccessful.

He makes one exception. The Ford—the "Model T" which Henry has seen fit to place on the shelf—is that exception. Flivvers sold to the Marysville junk yards as wrecks are frequently bolted together again and placed in shape for further service, Mr. Bevard says.

The junk company manager cites as an example a 1913 model flivver, which is said to be in running condition after a general overhauling.

The ancient vehicle has an interesting history. After leaving the Detroit factory it found its way to New Orleans, where it was used by a fish peddler. The owner came north two years ago and figured in a collision near Irwin, southwest of Marysville. The car appeared to be demolished beyond redemption and was sold to Bevard as junk.

Ready for Service

Bevard and his assistants installed a new radiator and made various other repairs and say that the machine will again run at any time and under all conditions. It is somewhat of a pet with the junk shop employes, who entered it in competition at the recent American Legion Home-coming at Marysville and were awarded first prize for having the most dilapidated automobile on display.

A canvass of junk dealers in Bucyrus revealed that more than 200 discarded machines are now in the yards, most of them being dismantled and a few held for possible reconstruction.

Of the 200, four were junked as the result of being hit by trains and seven as the outcome of collisions with other machines. The big majority, however, were used until worn out in actual service and then discarded.

Behind the Screen

As proud as a pouter pigeon is Hollywood's star, Rin-Tin-Tin. And no wonder. With Rin can be seen the reason—or reasons. A bundle of squirming, soft little fellows, puppies who call him Papa.

Hollywood is now speculating as to whether Rin will raise the pups to be movie stars like their daddy, now a veteran of the cinema.

THE movies are crowding grand opera—in the home of opera!

Announcement has just been made that the noted La Scala Opera in Milan, Italy, beginning next year will house for six months of each year feature cinemas, mostly those produced by Americans.

This is, indeed, a triumph of the camera! And it is but a natural result of the suddenly awakened desire of all Italians to se movies—a great many movies.

Word of the sudden but not unexpected increase in movie popularity in Italy was brought here by a motion picture official who visited Europe and learned of their movie wants and needs over there.

The official said Premier Benito Mussolini himself in an interview at Rome told of the coming change in the Milan opera house policy.

Incidentally, many opera lovers regard Milan as the leader of opera presentation centers.

Larry Kent, motion picture star, saved Mrs. Josephine Janis, mother of Elsie Janis, noted entertainer, from drowning in a Beverly Hills swimming pool.

What's become of Conway Tearle? He's still here and will have the lead male role in "Isle of Forgotten Women," a picture having Dorothy Sebastion in the cast.

There are over 50,000 motion picture theaters in the world, according to a recent census. And the movies are only 30 years old!

Canton Chinese have gone so completely movie enthusiastic that seven new theaters have opened in the Far East city this year.

Molly O'Day seems to be catching up on her sister, Sally O'Neil. Molly will soon appear in her third lead role. The girls are the daughters of Judge F. T. Nooman of Bayonne, N. J.

Dr. Emmi Freundlich of Austria was the only woman serving as an official delegate to the recent economic conference of the League of Nations.

Miss Carter Ludey, who began her career as a stenographer and typewriter, is now managing director of a London business with world-wide connections.

HIS RHEUMATISM VANISHED SINCE HE GOT KONJOLA

Marion Citizen Free of Awful Aches, Pains and Swellings; Enjoys Work Now

The extent to which this new Konjola is helping the people of Marion has become the talk of the drug and medical trades in this section. Throngs are calling daily to see the Konjola Man at the

MR. SCOTT TERRY

Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 S. Main-st, and hear his personal explanation of this new surprising compound. At the same time, a never ending stream of grateful letters; reports and telephone messages are received from people of this vicinity, describing the remarkable benefits they have derived from the use of this remarkable medicine.

One of the latest well-known residents to make a public endorsement of Konjola is Mr. Scott Terry, a steel worker, living at 803 Cheney-av, Marion.

"After my experience with Konjola," said Mr. Terry, "I want to indorse it, because this is the only medicine that ever delivered me from the awful aches and pains of rheumatism which I had been suffering.

"My arms, legs and feet were affected. The joints of my knees and elbows would get stiff and achy so that I couldn't raise my hand, and would have to limp like a cripple when I walked. My muscles were swollen, and especially in the mornings, my whole body felt like a solid mass of aches and pains. I was troubled with constipation, and only the strongest physics would give me relief, and I would always have to take something. I work in the steel mills, and I tell you, many times I could hardly drag myself along. It was almost impossible to work, and I thought I would have to give up.

"My suffering was getting worse all the time and I couldn't find anything to help me until I got Konjola, but since I have taken this medicine, all the pains and aches have vanished, and the swelling in my knees has disappeared. My work is easier, and I never feel weak and sore in the mornings like I used to. I sleep better. Konjola also cleaned out my system and my bowels are regulated like a clock.

"After any medicine will do so much for a person like Konjola has done in my case, I certainly want to indorse it, and recommend it to others."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 S. Main-st, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all of the good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.

Joke on News Correspondent In Mexico Causes Eviction

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Star Correspondent

WASHINGTON Sept. 23—One news correspondent was deported from Mexico recently whose case—lacking the qualities to make a very satisfactory "diplomatic incident"—hasn't been much advertised.

The deportee hadn't been there long. Finding him ignorant of the country and its language—in short, rather green—older members of the correspondents' corps had amused themselves describing to him the dangers to which they professed foreign journalists in Mexico City were exposed.

About this time there occurred the sure-enough "de Courcy deportation"—no pipe dream but the real thing, which the state department acted like resenting for awhile, but finally didn't, because some of our deportation methods are a trifle informal, too.

ANYWAY, the chance for his acquaintances to assure our hero, still on the scene, that he was next on the list, was too good to be passed up. Only, he was warned, he was reserved for a yet worse fate—a firing squad and an adobe wall—but, for heaven's sake, he mustn't try to escape—that would give the butchers just the opportunity they were thirsting for.

Trembling in his boots, our correspondent did nevertheless manage to smuggle out an "S O S" which, in due course, reached his boss in New York—the head of news interests of undoubtedly great weight and influence.

From this magnate there presently landed on the amazed President Calles' desk a 'steen-page telegram of blood-curdling threats, in the event that aught ill befell the writer's representative in the land of the Montezumas.

"THERE must be some mistake," came back the conciliatory answer, in Spanish, from the Mexican chief executive. "I have not, and never have had, a thought of harming a hair of your correspondent's head.

"I can see, however, that you are very uneasy concerning him.

"As I would not, for worlds, have you suffer unnecessary anxiety, I am sending him to the Rio Grande under a strong guard, with orders to deliver him safely on your side of the border."

* * *

A PORTRAIT of A. A. Adee, who served the state department, as second assistant secretary, for 38 years, until 1924, has just been hung in the department's diplomatic room.

Gazing at the well-remembered features, an attache told this story:

"One day Alvey had occasion to call a man on the telephone.

"'This is A. A. Adee speaking,' he said.

"'Beg pardon, I didn't catch that name,' replied the chap at the other end of the line.

"'A. A. Adee.' 'Please spell it.'

"'A.' 'Yes.' 'A' 'Yes.' 'A.' 'Aw, go to heck, ya smart Aleck! Ya can't kid me!'"

SEVERAL years before his death, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was a witness before a senate committee which was considering certain pending labor legislation, according to Bill Roberts of the federation's Washington staff, and the question of a fixed minimum wage came up.

"Now, look here, Mr. Gompers," said the chairman, "this thing of paying the same money to a tip-top workman and an indifferent workman never has appealed to my sense of justice. How do you defend it?"

"Don't all you senators get the same pay?" asked Gompers.

"Yes, we do," said the chairman, "but what of it?"

"Well, do you mean to tell me," demanded the old labor leader, "that you're all worth the same?"

PLANES FORCED DOWN IN RACE TO SPOKANE

Non-Stop Fliers Fail To Reach Coal; Complete Two-Thirds of Course

Felts Field, Spokane, Wash., Sept 23—Disappointment was keen here today over the failure of both transcontinental planes in the class C division of the New York-to-Spokane air derby to complete the race.

The planes, piloted by Eddie Stinson of Detroit, and C. A. "Duke" Schiller of Windsor, Ont., were both forced down in Montana after negotiating practically two-thirds of the distance in their projected non-stop flight from New York.

Lands at Missoula

Stinson landed at Missoula, Mont., at 3:31 p. m. yesterday when his giant Stinson Detroiter developed engine trouble. A short time later, Schiller was forced down at Billings, Mont., on account of similar trouble.

A purse of $10,000 was waiting here for the first non-stop flier to negotiate the 2,300-mile course from New York.

Three planes were originally entered in the non-stop section of the national air derby, but only two of them, Stinson's Detroiter and Schiller's "Royal Windsor" were able to get off the ground Wednesday afternoon at Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

51 YEARS OF FAITHFUL SERVICE

DON'T FAIL TO SEE IT
The Famous FLORENCE Hot Blast & CIRCULATOR Will Be Demonstrated

By Mr. R. F. Gillivan, Factory Representative.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, AT OUR STORE

The most talked of Heater and Circulator. The wonder of the age, for the burning of slack, sawdust, soft coal, wood or hard coal. In fact any kind of fuel.

What It Will Do

The No. 180 Supreme Florence Parlor Circulator embodies all the basic features of the Florence Hot Blast and gives you a steady flow of heat over your home of 6 to 8 rooms as a furnace and will heat with 4½ tons of slack or lump coal.

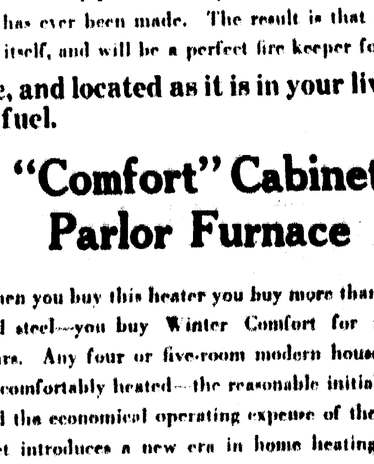
The No. 160 Supreme differs in size only from the No. 180 and is designed to heat 4 or 5 rooms and will consume not more than 3½ or 4 tons of coal.

The No. 151 or No. 73 will heat 3 or 4 ordinary rooms all winter on 3 tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 153 or No. 75 will heat 5 or 6 rooms all winter on 4 tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 155 or No. 77 will heat 6 to 8 rooms all winter on 6 tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 155, one and one-half sections high, is designed for garages and other large buidings and will heat them on half the fuel required for ordinary stoves.



REMEMBER!

The Florence burns all the smoke and gases and you eliminate all the offensive parts of the fuel.

No Dirt Inside or Outside the House

As Clean as a Hound's Tooth

The Florence Holds Fire for Forty-Eight Hours

A steady even temperature is maintained at all times, not red hot one minute and cold the next, an even flow of heat night or day, and no rolling out of bed into a cold room with a Florence in your home.

BE SURE YOU SEE IT!

NO SMOKE! NO SOOT! NO DIRT! EVERYTHING CONSUMED!

Let us show you this wonderful heating device, burning the cheapest slack with as nice results as if you were burning natural or artificial gas. It will enable you to realize that you can burn any kind of fuel without any soot accumulating in the pipe or flue, it is the only absolute smoke consuming stove that has ever been invented. INVESTIGATE OUR GUARANTEE. If by operating the stove according to directions, you find any soot in the pipe or flue we will make you a present of the stove and refund the money you paid for it. No other dealer would dare to make such an offer.

NOTICE—If the fire pot cracks or burns out in 5 years we will replace it with a new one free of charge. The reason is the Florence burns out the fuel while with other stoves and circulators, the fuel burns out the stove. It is the only jointless ash pit base with full radiation that is on the market or has ever been made. The result is that as a fire keeper it is in a class by itself, and will be a perfect fire keeper for 25 years.

The Florence Circulator distributes heat like a furnace, and located as it is in your living room it eliminates traveling up and down stairs and operates on one-third the fuel.

NO SHADOW OF DOUBT IN TUNNEY VICTORY, SAYS WALSH

Near Knockout of Champ in Seventh Not Regarded As Basis For Argument

Comeback by Tunney Proved His Fighting Ability and Showed Dempsey Is Not Aggressive Battler of Former Years, Asserts Sports Writer

DAVIS J. WALSH

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—Jack Dempsey! This writer, whose poor, weak words are humble and strangely contrite this morning, hereby salutes you. You were a man, a great man, last night as you failed to win back your heavyweight championship and it took a younger and, for the mere moment at least, a better man to beat you. Five years ago—but why exhume the past and apply it to the present?

The last bout for the heavyweight championship of the world was not fought five years ago. It was fought last night and the better man, judged on last night's standards, the better man won.

Praise for Tunney

Gene Tunney! Man that you are of few words but big ones, I give you all I have in the way of sincere and honest admiration. You were on the floor for a count that reached the hut size of a Goliath, nine and seven-eighths or something. But you got up and you won and the man who can do that is the man who may beset me forever more with words that neither he nor I may be able to understand.

Dempsey had his moment. It came in the seventh round when he had Tunney within a split second of being counted right out. Some freely declare today that the moment was too long; that Tunny was on the floor too long; that, in reality, Tunney was out and Dempsey was in, which may be taken as a fair example of what manner of man this Dempsey is.

Keeps 'Em Arguing

He had them arguing on the question of fair or foul punch in the Sharkey fight two months ago. Today he had them asking whether Referee Dave Barry counted nine or nineteen in the seventh round over Tunney. It did seem the part of a long nine.

However, two near-chumps came on to an anti-climax after the big fight and I noted that when one of them scored a knockdown and failed to retire to a corner, the count was first begun, then abandoned and then resumed at the count of one after he had abided by the rules. Dempsey was over-long in departing from his position over Tunney's prostrate form in that seventh round.

But what a man he was, whether he carried or not. Even Tunney must have thought of that, if he thought of anything, as he sat there on the floor with his eyes blank and dull. For Dempsey was a man last night whose real greatness, in a physical way, was behind him but whose moral stamina simply would not say die.

Probable Mutterings

For all I know, since I have consulted no one and do not wish to do so, the assembled intelligentsia may be muttering in its beard over that count that Barry gave Tunney. They even may be arguing as to who actually won and lost the fight. They shouldn't.

I am conscious of the fact that a lot of men around this ringside are soliciting opinions as to whether the count was right or wrong. And there you have the thing all over again—fair or foul; long or no count, as we pool hustlers would say. As I see it, the fact of the matter is that Dempsey had his moment and wouldn't take it.

Old men get that way. It is called ultra-conservatism and it means that what you did in your rash youth, you won't do in your old age. Imagine the young, impetuous Dempsey of 1919 having a helpless man before him and refusing to do anything about it for a full minute.

Dempsey Went Wrong

What I wish to assert is that Dempsey lost the fight and the honor of being the only ex-champion of the heavyweights to regain the title in that seventh round. When Tunney got up, it seemed that Dempsey couldn't go wrong. But he did.

Age, the great leveler, the acme of conservatism, had made an ordinary fighter of Dempsey in the crisis of his competitive life.

"Just how long was that count over Tunney, 12 or 14 seconds?" asked a Dempsey man after the fight. It wouldn't make the slightest difference to me if it were a million. The old Dempsey rush would have annihilated Tunney after he did get up. But Dempsey lacked the instinct or, great man that he otherwise was, he pulled a plain, ordinary, unmitigated bone. Anyhow, he made not the merest attempt to carry a punch-drunk man by storm and even went so far as to beckon him to come near, when the man through sheer weakness could go nowhere but back.

Great Moment Passed

And so this great moment passed and soon Tunney was himself again, the champion who had carried the early rounds and had Dempsey all but out in the fourth. Indeed, only a single round after his distress in the seventh.

IRISH HAWAIIANS

Emerald Isle Blooded Boys from Honolulu After Dayton U. Berths

Dayton, Sept. 23 — Many are the miles of land and sea stretching between the Emerald Isle and the Pacific playground of Hawaii, but at least three sons of old Erin in the days gone by strayed to the beach of Waikiki, for this fall season sees three Irish Hawaiians making strong bids for regular berths on the Flyer eleven at the University of Dayton.

The three are John McColgan, 190 pound tackle; Pat Gleason, 185 pound fullback; and Pat Hennessey, 195 pound end.

All three from St. Louis High, Honolulu, and each has made an all scholastic record in the islands.

McColgan is already showing the form of a regular tackle, while Gleason is a triple threat man and accounted the best punter on the team.

Hennessey, very fast and adept at snagging forwards, is expected to make the grade at right end, supplanting his fellow countryman, Sam Hipa. Hipa, a four sport man is ineligible this year, due to the six semester rule.

HOW DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY FOUGHT AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

ROUND ONE

Dempsey led with a light left which was short and they went into a clinch. He missed with another and then sent a light left to the body.

They sparred and both missed with lefts. Tunney scored with a left and right to the head. Again they sparred and then Tunney missed with a left lead.

Dempsey bobbed and weaved and took a left on the chin. Tunney bit him again in the same spot and the crowd cheered. Then sparred and then Tunney was short with a left lead, whereupon they went into another clinch. Tunney was boxing flatfooted and not moving away from Dempsey. The latter was not coming in.

They sparred and feinted again without a blow being exchanged. Tunney missed with a left but scored with a right to the head.

They sparred again. Dempsey went inside a right hand lead by Tunney and sent a left to the body. However, Tunney landed a one-two-punch to the body at the bell.

Tunney's round.

ROUND TWO

Tunney shot a straight left to Dempsey's head. Dempsey short with a left and then Tunney landed two lefts to the jaw. Dempsey sent a left to Tunney's body and stepped away from a right.

Gene landed an overhead right to the jaw. They sparred cautiously and Tunney missed both left and right leads to the jaw.

Dempsey led with a hard left to the jaw. Close to the ropes Dempsey took a light left while they clinched. Tunney got over with a right to the head as Dempsey was going away. He was fighting. He bobbed and tried to get inside but the only result was another clinch. The referee had trouble in parting them.

Again they sparred. Gene missed a left lead but brought up an uppercut and followed with another. He was wide with two more, however. Then Dempsey clouted him hard with a left hook to the body.

Gene landed two lefts to the jaw. They exchanged left hooks and as Dempsey stepped back Tunney shot a left to the face.

Round even.

ROUND THREE

Dempsey came out fast for the third. Tunney made Dempsey miss with a left and held on. Dempsey got in a light left to jaw. Tunney short with a left and a right. Dempsey landed a left to the body, got in close and hit Gene with two rights to the body and cuffed with five more to head.

They clinched. Tunney scored with two lefts to the body in close and then held. The referee separated them. Dempsey stepped inside a right lead but came out with a left on jaw. Jack then hooked a right to Tunney's chin and then took a left to the head. Jack scored to the body with a left.

Tunney scored with left and a right to the head. Gene came through with two right crosses to the chin. They cuffed each other in close and Gene made faces as Dempsey hit the back of his neck with the rabbit punch.

Tunney's round.

ROUND FOUR

They circled each other and then Tunney landed a hard right to the head and followed with a left. Dempsey came through with two lefts to the body as Tunney missed. The champion winced. He hit Dempsey with three short lefts. Dempsey missed with a left hook. They exchanged a pair of lefts to the head in close.

Both landed lefts to the body and Tunney scored with a right to the head. It was apparent that Tunney was angry.

Gene followed with two lefts and a right to the head and moved away from Dempsey's left lead. Jack got over a left to the body and head.

Dempsey missed with a left and Gene countered with a right. Two left uppercuts had Jack in some distress and another had him goofy. A third had him almost out. His eyes glazed and his knees were sagging.

Tunney's round.

ROUND FIVE

Dempsey seemed groggy at the start of the round. Tunney missed with a left. Jack shot a left and a right to the body. Tunney landed three lefts to the head and fought off Dempsey's body attack.

Jack shot a hard right to the body but took two lefts in return. Gene shot another right to Dempsey's head.

They sparred carefully for a moment and then clinched. Jack landed a right to the body.

Jack landed a left to the body and head and took a right by way of reply. Gene poked three lefts to the face and crossed a left and a right to the jaw. A straight left from Dempsey rocked Tunney's head back on his shoulders. However, Gene came back with a right that hurt and then another to Dempsey's chin.

He followed with a third. Dempsey clinched. Dempsey was short with a left lead and again they clinched.

Tunney missed with a left and a right and they danced around. A moment later he shot a right and then a left to Dempsey's jaw.

Tunney's round.

ROUND SIX

They sparred at the start of the round, not a blow being exchanged for the first few seconds and then Tunney landed a right. Dempsey followed with a left to the body. Tunney scored with a left to the head. Dempsey scored with two lefts to the body.

They clinched. Tunney scored with a left to the face and then a straight left from Dempsey caught Gene on the chin and the crowd cheered. Tunney shot a left to the jaw and Dempsey a right to the body.

In a wild exchange Tunney missed a wild uppercut and Dempsey landed a left to the body.

Tunney drove Jack to the ropes with a fusillade of punches to the body. Jack came back with a left. He missed with a left and they exchanged body punches at the bell.

Dempsey's round.

ROUND SEVEN

They came out feinting for the 7th round, and kept at it for 17 seconds. Tunney then landed two lefts to the head. He scored with another and then missed with a right.

Dempsey landed a left to the jaw and Gene went down groggy. He got up at the count but in a daze. Jack scored with a left to the body and seemed to be playing it safe. Jack scored two lefts to the belt. Tunney was running away from the attack.

Tunney was running around the ring and Jack waved him to come on and smiled. He then went after Gene in a furious attack, Gene then ran again and then turned and took a left uppercut.

Tunney took two hard lefts on the beltline just at the bell, looking appealingly at the referee, who took no heed.

Dempsey's round.

ROUND EIGHT

Tunney's knees were aching as they came out. Dempsey crouched and seemed to be in complete command. He landed two lefts to the body.

Tunney still was running but his knees couldn't obey him. He took a left to the jaw and two more to the body. Jack shot a left hook to the jaw, Tunney countering with a right. Jack had Gene down to his own speed and Gene scored with a right to the head and left to body.

The two lefts to the body had Gene hanging on. Dempsey shot in a hard left hook, the champ being staggered. They exchanged wild lefts and rights. Tunney sent an uppercut to the jaw and Dempsey went to his knees. The referee counted number one. Tunney landed with a left to the jaw and then went in close and pounded Dempsey's body.

Before another blow could be struck the bell sounded.

Tunney's round.

ROUND NINE

Bell. Dempsey came out with a rush and missed with a left. He got in close and pounded Tunney with a rabbit punch. They bobbed and weaved. Tunney runing away. Neither man was strong at this time. Tunney landed a hard right behind Jack's ear as they came in close.

Tunney jabbed a left to the nose and Jack moved away. Gene scored with a right to the body as Dempsey rushed in. Both of Jack's eyes were cut in the exchange. Gene scored with two hard overhead rights to Dempsey's head and Jack was bleeding freely. Tunney brought up a left uppercut and backed Dempsey against the ropes.

Then Tunney shot two hard rights to Dempsey's head. Dempsey cuffed him with two hooks and a left to the jaw and then came three hard rights from Gene. He had Dempsey fighting at the

New Grandstand No Longer Means Pennant, Says Menke

BY FRANK G. MENKE

THE idea that a club owner can build his little self a new grand stand and be immediately rewarded with a pennant, has been knocked most goofy this season by those once ferocious Cubs in the wilds of Chicago.

In the gentle springtime, which long since has become a mere matter of memory and history, the controlling factors in the bossing of the Cubs, took a look at their regalia, and said:

—Well Rather—

"By jove, these stands do look a bit tawdry, do they not?"

And the answer was very much the affirmative.

"Hasten hither and you" spoke'a Bill Wrigley, who owns the Cubs and the various et ceteras that go to make up a ball club, "and find me a contractor and an architect and a few plumbers and steam fitters and a lot of cement and nails and lumber, and let's blow ourselves to a nice grandstand."

All of which was done in due course of time.

And when the baseball season opened the Cubs disported within the shadows of the newest and most modern plants in America.

Right away the superstitious folks sat up, took notice, and commented:

"Looks as if the Cubs ought to win a flag this year, for does not history show that about every time a club builds new stands, it grabs the flag the same season?"

Sudden Spurt

For a while the Cubs showed nothing that would warrant any pennant hopes. Then, all of a sudden, they began to travel along with a hip and a wild hurrah. They battered down one foeman and then another; they ran roughshod over the whole league, and before they had concluded their rampaging, they were on the top, three and a half games to the good and with the season's end only about seven weeks away.

"Didn't I tell you" quizzed the man who believes that you can win a flag by building a new grandstand. "Didn't I tell you?"

It did look as if he did—for a while.

And then—ah, then. The Cubs exploded in one of the most terrific detonations in all baseball history. They dropped something like seven games in a row, dropped the leadership of the league, finally won one combat, and then slumped right back into the slough of despond and the parade of defeat.

—Big Slump—

The club that had won around 21 straight games, lost about 12 out of 15 after it had reached the top—and dropped those games without any noticeable reason for those defeats. Its team was not shattered by injuries or accidents; its pitchers did not suddenly contract a variety of sore arms, nor did the fielders cultivate Charley Hose, nor were the batters troubled with blind staggers.

The team just went to pieces—and there's no explanation for it.

And, in the meantime, there has gone to pieces that old saying that urges a club owner to build a new grandstand with a pennant as his certain reward.

WHAT? A NICKEL?

No Wonder Smokers Can't Believe That a Good Cigar Need Cost No More. But 5c is Enough!

Many men naturally doubt that there is a truly good cigar on the market at 5c today. There are plenty of nickel cigars that are "fair" or "pretty good." But it doesn't seem possible to some smokers that a fragrant, mild cigar can be made to sell for five cents.

Just the same, it is possible. There is a cigar on the market today which has everything you ask in a good smoke. Mellowness, flavor, and the sweet aroma of ripe tobacco. That smoke has sold big for thirty years. It used to cost more. Record sales shot up the volume. That's the reason you can buy it now for a nickel. And it's better than ever. Here's the magic password, men—"Havana Ribbon." Spend one nickel. When you put fire to a Havana Ribbon you're going to be delighted from the first fragrant cloud you send up.

PIRATES SPLIT WITH GIANTS; CARDS GO INTO SECOND PLACE

New York Trails St. Louis By Half Game As Result of Yesterday's Contests

Ruth's Fifty-Sixth Homer Enables Yanks To Tie American League Record of 105 Victories in One Season; Gehrig Sets New Run Total

By LES CONKLIN

New York, Sept. 23—Although the [illegible] scored a moral victory yesterday [illegible] a double header with [illegible] they were menaced today [illegible] attack from another quarter. [illegible] as attack from another quarter. The Cardinals won from Boston and [illegible] undisputed possesson of second [illegible] only three games behind Pittsburgh.

The Giants, now half a game behind the Cardinals tackle the Pirates again today while the Cards hoped to gain more ground at the expense of the Braves.

Pittsburgh must win six of its nine remaining games to clinch the pennant, should New York and St. Louis make a clean sweep.

Four hits by Grantham and three by Traynor helped Ray Kremer beat the Giants yesterday 5 to 2. With Hogsmouths on the mound, the Giants won the nightcap in a romp, 7 to 1. Benton and Aldridge were the losing hurlers.

Rogers Hornsby of the Giants hit his 25th and 26th homers during the afternoon.

The Cardinals had a tough time subduing the Braves 6 to 5. Three singles, a sacrifice, a walk and error sent the winning runs across the pan in the ninth.

The Cubs, clinging grimly to the chase trounced the Phillies, 8 to 4, and advanced to within three games of the Giants. Hack Wilson smacked his 28th homer, tying Cy Williams for league honors.

Ruth Hits 56th

In the American league the Yankees, collectively and individually continued their assault upon various world's records. Ruth hit his 56th homer and needs only four more to break his record. Gehrig drove in two runs, setting a new world's record of 172 runs for this specialty, and breaking the old mark of 170 made by Ruth. Earl Combs set another record by hitting three consecutive triples. By beating Detroit, 8 to 7 on Ruth's homer in the ninth the Yanks tied the American League record of 105 victories in one season.

Charley Bates, outfielder obtained by Philadelphia from Pittsfield, Mass., made six hits as the Athletes downed Cleveland twice, 4 to 3 and 5 to 2.

The White Sox dropped their twelfth straight game, losing to the Red Sox in the tenth inning, 2 to 1. The Senators gained undisputed possession of third place by outslugging the Browns, 10 to 7.

The Reds two-timed Brooklyn, 2 to 1 and 4 to 3.

RUTH NEEDS FOUR TO BREAK RECORD

New York, Sept. 23—By walloping four more homers in New York's six remaining games, Babe Ruth can shatter his great 1921 record. The big boy's 56th, which beat Detroit yesterday, was a tremendous wallop which nearly cleared the right field bleachers.

In addition to Ruth, National League home run artists also are on a rampage. Hack Wilson tied Cy Williams for the lead by hitting his 28th, and Rogers Hornsby bagged his 25th and 26th homers.

HARDING HIGH SET FOR GAME SATURDAY

Coach Bohyer Sends Team Through Light Workout in Final Practice

Coach Bohyer will send his Red and Black gridders through a light practice session tonight as a final preparation for the season's opener here Saturday afternoon with Upper Sandusky. The practice will be just enough exercise to keep the boys limbered up.

Last night the team got its first workout at the fairgrounds, where the game will be played. Tonight the practice field will be used.

Work on Defense

Practice the last two days has been devoted to perfecting the plays and strengthening the defense. Coach Bohyer is still in the dark concerning the strength of the Wyandot county team but he will depend on the heavy Harding line to take care of the defense in case the visitors become aggressive.

Recent practice has brought no upsets in the tentative lineup. Since the game Saturday has no bearing on the N. C. O. league championship it is quite likely that all those who have showed promise so far will see service.

Game at 2:30 P. M.

The field at the fairgrounds has undergone some improvements. The field has been shifted slightly and the goal posts have been placed in accordance with the new rule which requires that they be set ten yards back of the goal line.

The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

BINCOS AT HARPSTER

Visitors in Tie With Claridon for First Place

The Marion Bincos will meet the Modern Woodmen, of Harpster, Sunday in a double-header. The game will be played at the Woodmen diamond. The game is expected to provide plenty of excitement for the followers of the Bincos as the Woodmen are in a tie with Claridon for first place in the tri-county league.

Five games remain on the tri-county schedule.

Coach Thorpe Drills Defense Against Passing Game Played by Slippery Rock

Alliance, Sept. 23—Mount Union College will open its 1927 grid schedule at Alliance, Saturday, with the strong Slippery Rock Normal team, Slippery Rock, Pa.

In preparing for the game Saturday Head Coach John Thorpe is putting his squad through hard scrimmages this week. He is placing special emphasis on the defense against the pass as the Slippery Rock team will be an experienced one and one that will make good use of the new pass rule.

The Mount varsity this year will be made up largely of green and inexperienced material. Only three men who have played two years are eligible namely: Capt. Walters, Deerfield; James McBride, Canton; Arthur Yengling, Salem.

Among those lettermen who have been lost from last year's squad are both ends. To fill their positions Assistant Coach "Puck" Carson is grooming three sophomores, Kenneth Sweet, Akron; Bob Ball, East Palestine; Dan Myers, Shanesville, and Philip Koppel, Newton Falls, a senior.

Bixler, Meredith and Emerson who were regular backfield men as sophomores last year are out again and are practically sure of their posts.

Swinehart Tires of Akron Play Eagles Here Sunday

Eagles' Lineup Will Be Same as Last Sunday; Game Called at 2:15

Perhaps the management of the Marion Eagles had no intention of saving the best until the last when they booked the Swinehart Tires of Akron to come here Sunday afternoon, but that is about they did, even if unintentional.

The Swineharts will come here for a tilt with the Eagles at 2:15 Sunday afternoon at Lincoln Park and although the game won't close the season the chances baseball fans will have to see the locals in action are getting mighty scarce.

Here Last Year

The Tire aggregation from the Rubber City won't be strangers to local fans as Marion broke even with them in two games here last year. The visitors apparently haven't slowed up any this year. In the three games they played with the Firestones of the comparatively fast O-P league they lost by only one run in each game.

Ewing, who has been pitching good ball for the Tires this summer will likely be on the mound Sunday. Emerson is slated to work behind the bat. Good and Conroy will be the Eagles' battery choice.

Same Lineup for Eagles

For the Eagles the lineup that worked last Sunday will probably go in against the Tires. That will be: Bacon, 1b; Pine, 2b; Buckland, 3b; Rizor, ss; Good, p; Conroy, c; Rowan, lf; Sharrock, rf, and Price, cf.

The Swinehart lineup will look like this: Tidyman, 3b; Stauffer, ss; Tobin, 2b; J. Emerson, c; Nichols, rf; Tedrow, lf; Leonard, cf; Kellog, 1b and Ewing, p. As utility men the visitors will bring along Armstrong, Bridges, Walker and Rollins.

DENISON SQUAD HAS TWELVE LETTER MEN

Harry Wilhelm, Formerly of Dayton Stivers, Guides Big Red Athletics

Granville, Sept. 23—Denison's Big Red pigskin experts will be as crimson as in former years, but not so big, it was indicated here when Coach Harry Wilhelm took charge of the forty candidates.

With twelve eligible lettermen back on the squad Wilhelm's problem will be to find some heft in the new candidates, or to build a team well versed in an aerial offensive.

Formerly of Stivers

This is Wilhelm's first year with the Licking County college athletic department though his record in high school football shone for three years while he coached the Stivers High School eleven at Dayton, to several championships during his three years there.

If Wilhelm's candidates can produce one dependable center and one punter to take some of the burden from the injured leg of Captain elect Harold Prosser, the Big Red's chances in the Ohio conference will be more than passing fair otherwise only time can tell.

Prosser Has Injury

Prosser is a three sport man, a veteran footballer and a good punter but an injury sustained last fall is still bothering.

The lettermen who are back in the daily drills are: Charles Mason, Mitchell Gregory, Richard Freed John Owens, Harold Stubbs, Richard DeMay, Andrew Kistemaker, George Oxley, Joseph Rose and Emmett Russell.

Director of Athletics Walter J. Livingston, will devote his entire time this year to adminstration work of the department and to intramurals.

TOURNEY OPENS

America's First Professional Tennis Meet Gets Under Way Today

New York, Sept. 23—America's first professional tennis championship tournament gets under way here today. Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, former Davis cup players and 14 other well-known pros will compete for cash prizes.

When the tournament ends Richards will sail for Japan where he has been invited by the Japanese Tennis Association to act as coach. He will play exhibition matches in various Japanese cities and will instruct and lecture at Waseida and Keo university.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT TUNNEY VICTORY

he had Dempsey on the floor for a count of one with a left hook to the jaw and for the remainder of the fight cut him up about the eyes almost as badly as he did in that first fight at Philadelphia.

Yes, except for that brief but, seemingly, all too lengthy interval in the seventh, Tunney always was the winner and great though Dempsey was, he was the loser because, by his hesitancy, he proved that he was not the killer of old.

Age does that to the Jesse Jameses of this life and it did it again to Jack Dempsey in the seventh round last night. But whereas an aged Jesse might have missed his man at 20 paces, the Dempsey of last night plugged his prey but couldn't keep him plugged. And incidentally, he took quite a plugging himself, which combination of circumstances has forced me this day to bare my bald pate in reverence to the gent who so richly deserves it.

Former Supremacy

We know why so many observers thought Dempsey unbeatable before 1923.

It was a great fight, well worth the record crowd of 150,000 that saw it; well worth the record gate of $2,500,000 and well worth a $40 ringside seat, provided anything is worth $40 and ringside doesn't mean outside or nearly so.

Yes, a great fight. But it takes two men to make any fight and Gene Tunney was the other. He proved that when he got up after that left and right to the jaw in the seventh. Further than that, no one except himself knows whether he could have arisen earlier, had he wished. He merely stood or perhaps I should say, he lay within his rights in waiting until he heard the referee say "nine."

Any brief for the referee, however, may be held elsewhere. He ignored at least 10 of Dempsey's punches that were at or near the belt line and possibly four of Tunney's, and in the eighth round he started to out-count his time-keeper over the fallen Dempsey.

An Epochal Event

Still, I maintain that the fight, as such, was an epic. For three rounds, it was nothing. Both men were feeling the other out, an unusual procedure for Dempsey, and perforce nothing happened. But late in the fourth, Tunney crossed a series of rights to Dempsey's jowl and Jack was rubber-legged and drooling from the mouth, absolutely out, when the bell saved him.

But the man is hardly human, even at his advanced age, and so he was able to stall his way through the fifth round and, then revivified anew, to win the sixth in a series of wild exchanges. Then the seventh!

The drama developed suddenly in the first minute of the play, the synopsis being a left hook to Tunney's jaw dropping him in a sitting position on the second strand of the ropes. The climax was the following right, which deposited him on the floor. The denouement was Dempsey's failure to do anything.

Tragic Close

The rest was tragic. Having run away from his impending doom, Tunney finally was able to again make a stand in the eighth and in the midst of it, he nailed Dempsey with a left uppercut for a knockdown in the eighth. That was the turning point.

From that moment, Tunney won every exchange and at the end was trying desperately for a knockout that never came.

And 150,000 persons were glad that it didn't. For the gamester makes all men his friends.

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

THOSE who enjoy good stories presented in an unusual or unique style will find plenty of fireside satisfaction in "They Also Serve," Peter B. Kyne's latest novel. It is as much a departure from his usual style as his "Never the Twain Shall Meet."

"They Also Serve" is a war story told in the first person by a thoroughbred artillery horse, the "Professor," pressed into service before the draft. It is a tale of glaring days in the trenches during the World war as it might be told by any number of four-footed conscripts who saw service the same as their masters.

Of particular appeal will this book be to horse lovers because it contains much curious and detailed information about the life of an army horse. To a person whose fondness for animals is limited the "Professor" seems to use too many equine terms in talking of human life.

Besides the "Professor" and "Tip," an old army mule, the important characters are three soldiers of a type that most war stories ignore; they are intelligent and well behaved. The easy-going plot is carried along in interest almost as much by its information as by the story. It gives a straight forward account of the more pleasant, adventurous side of the World war and derives the necessary degree of originality from its novel method of narration.

KYNE'S vitality and racy humor are at their height in this novel. He has written with understanding, and well he might, for he has ever been a lover of horses. For his background he does not draw upon imagination but upon recollection for he served in France with the American forces.

Being a veteran of that great struggle and possessed of deep insight into human nature and of the true Celtic wit Kyne has dug keenly into real war psychology and has exposed the luster of character and fine courage instead of finding base metal. At least, not too much of it.

Those who fought, those who waited for them, those who love horses and those who love a swift tale full of the unexpected—these will like Kyne's new book.

Those who are inclined to quibble that Roosevelt might have called it "nature faking" to portray a horse putting his own Odyssey into such skilled words and witty thoughts—they still will have to admit that a horse's nose is closer to the ground and the muck and mire than the rider's.

While the name of the book and the knowledge of what it cotnains may not lend a great number to read it, those curious enough to scan the first few pages of the book undoubtedly will finish it. At least, that is the experience of the reviewer.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN WRITES NEW BOOK

Joseph C. Lincoln's new book, "The Aristocratic Miss Brewster" is a wholesome novel centering on the delightful character, Mary Brewster, a member of one of the "first families" of Wapatomac, who, as her fortune ebbs away, is forced to find some means of livelihood—an unheard of thing for a Brewster to have to do. There is a romance between her and a Captain David Cummings that is an absorbing story in itself.

Miss Gordon Holmes, who has made a success as a stockbroker in London, has now achieved another triumph for her sex. She has been appointed a director of the City Savings Bank Company of Budapest, Hungary, and is the only woman bank director in that country.

Bears Sent Scurrying to Cover Short Lines as Bulls Rally

STOCK TRADING REMAINS QUIET

Business Reports Fail to Reveal Heralded Revival Now Due

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, firm; industrial stocks, irregular; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; call money, 4 per cent; grain, irregular; copper, firm; oil, irregular; cotton, reactionary; rubber, firm; sugar, steady; pig iron, firm; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, Sept. 23—Stock trading resumed its leisurely and deliberate course today after yesterday's session on the bear side. The bears who upset the market at the close of yesterday's session made an attack on United States Steel and General Motors, scampered to cover their short lines. After the movement was completed, there was little demand for stocks from any quarter.

Confirmation of the first three weeks of September in American business failed to provide evidence of the business revival which should be making its appearance at this time. Car loadings during the current week were below expectations although there is a very acceptable explanation, or alibi, for the falling off in important directions. The coal district refused to become excited over the increase in speculative borrowing which was more than offset by the strong cash position of the banks in the Federal Reserve System.

Trading in the speculative leaders was almost at a standstill in the third and final hours. The growing uncertainty in the Wall Street district with respect to nearby developments in important departments of industry has discouraged buying of stocks at current prices. On the other hand, the unwillingness of conservative investors to sell their stock at any price has resulted in the withholding of stocks which would otherwise be coming to market in good volume at this time.

COFFEE MARKET

New York, Sept. 23—The opening of the coffee futures market was irregular today. Initial prices ranged from 15 points lower to 5 points higher than the previous closing levels. September opened at 12.03, down 15; December 12.20 up 05 and March 12.05, unchanged.

YOUTHFUL SIAMESE TWINS ILL

Mary and Margaret Gibbs, 14-year-old twins who have been joined since birth, are seriously ill with pneumonia at their home in Holyoke, Mass. Mary was stricken first, and for several days Margaret was perfectly well. Then she, too, fell victim to the disease. Physicians, who say it is impossible to separate the twins, declare both will die if the disease proves fatal to one. Photo shows Mary, left, and Margaret, enjoying a game of billiards shortly before their illness.

WOMAN'S FAITH IN PREACHER UNSHAKEN

Alleged Bigamist Victim of Amnesia, Grand Rapids Widow States

Grand Rapids Mich. Sept. 23—Mrs. Edda Thomas, 50, whom the Rev. Willis J. Jordan, 55, the disappearing preached of Columbus, Ga. and other points told Grand Rapids police he came here to marry, today retained unshaken her faith in the man described in dispatches as a much-married Lothario of the Methodist clergy.

Jordan was released from St. Mary's hospital, Thursday, and immediately afterward was swallowed up in the bustle of the city.

Not Sought by Police

"I don't care where the man is," Police Supt. A. A. Carroll said today. "I have received no instructions to hold him from police of places where he is alleged to have committed bigamy."

Her voice trembling, Mrs. Thomas vehemently proclaimed her faith in Jordan.

"I have known the Rev. Mr. Jordan for a long time," the widow said, "for a fine example of christian manhood."

"He is often attacked by amnesia and later is unable to remember what he has done," she said. "If it is true that he has been married more than once without being divorced I am certain that it occurred while he was suffing an attack and unaware of his former marriages."

A boy will refuse to make explanations because he is sulky; and also because he is too proud. Be sure you perceive the difference.

VISITS BROTHER

Harvey Swartz Returns to City After 42 Years Absence

Harvey Swartz, Kingsville, Texas, formerly of this city, is visiting at the home of his brother, William Swartz, 275 Ballentine-av, whom he has not seen for 42 years. Mr. and Mrs. Swartz left Cleveland for Texas shortly after their marriage and Mr. Swartz never paid a return visit to his home here. He is now employed as a machinist with the Southern Pacific Railroad at Kingsville. During his residence here he was employed as a machinist with the Huber Manufacturing Co. and will be remembered by a number of the "old timers" at the plant and in the city.
